Outlaws Ohio Senate Redistricting Plan

RULING PLACES RICHLAND IN OLD DISTRICT

Ohio Supreme Court Holds Plan Unconstitutional In Decision Today.

NO CHANGES VALID

Findings Return County To 29th-31st District; G. O. P. Claims Victory.

Richland county was back in the old 27th-29th state senatorial district with Ashland, Lorain, and Medina counties today after the Ohio supreme court in a special decision upset a new state redistricting plan adopted last year.

Under the set-up that the court ruled out today, Richland county was in the 29th-31st district which also included Ashland, Crawford, Wyandot, and Seneca counties.

Ruling that the new redistricting plan was unconstitutional, the court ordered another reapportionment for the period ending in 1950. The court's decision, voted by five of the seven members, supports the stand of the Republican state administration which contended that the reapportionment board acted without constitutional authority.

Members of the board which set up the new plan last year are State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson and Secretary of State John Sweeney, Democrats, and Republican Governor John W. Bricker.

The high court held that if the ex-officio board, designated to make necessary changes after each decennial census, had adhered to the constitution there was not a single change that could have been made. The court decision allowed Attorney General Thomas J. Herbert petition for a writ of mandamus to compel a new apportionment.

Judge Charles B. Zimmerman, member of the court from Springfield, dissented. Judge Gilbert Bettman of Cincinnati did not participate in the decision.

The court's history-making action was regarded generally as a victory for the Republicans since the new senatorial plan gave Democrats an edge in the election of

STREAMS SWELL

Rains Force Creeks Over Banks in County.

Richland county streams neared the flood stage today after four days of rainfall during which the precipitation measured nearly an inch and a half.

The water was only a few inches from State Route 13 at Bellville and other sections of the county reported streams out of their banks. There was no report, however, of serious damage to roads.

More rain was forecast for this section tonight but it was not expected to be heavy. Warmer weather also was predicted by the weatherman for this afternoon, followed by cooler again tonight. The temperature dropped to 34, two above freezing, this morning and remained there until noon.

Pay Tribute To County's War Victims

Flags at Half Mast In City; Fears Held for Safety of 7 Others.

Flags flew at half mast in Mansfield today as the city and county joined with the bereaved families in mourning for the first two Richland county casualties reported in World War No. 2.

Meanwhile, there was deep apprehension among families and friends of the seven Richland county men in Bataan as they waited anxiously for some word, hoping against hope that the county's sons may have reached the fort of Cerregidor safely.

The board of trustees of the Memorial building ordered the flag in front of the building to be flown at half mast today in honor of Second Lieut. Robert P. Spreng, 28, of Mansfield, and Capt. Elmer L. Parsel, 36, who met death April 2 in an airplane accident in the far eastern theater of war.

Service-Safety Director Fred B. Wolff directed that the flag at Central Park likewise be flown at half mast today, and similar instructions were issued by Sam Fox, commander of McVey Post American Legion, concerning the flag at the Legion home.

Plans were announced today for memorial services Sunday afternoon for Lieut. Spreng, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Spreng, 414 Park avenue west. The services will be held at 2 p. m.

Tribute Paid Bataan Forces By MacArthur

MELBOURNE — (AP) — General Douglas MacArthur said today of the defenders of Bataan: "No army has ever done so much with so little."

The supreme commander, hero of Bataan's first successful defense, said:

"The Bataan force went out as it would have wished—fighting to the end of its flickering, forlorn hope.

"No army has ever done so much with so little.

"Nothing became it more than its last hour of trial and agony.

"To the weeping mothers of its dead I only say that the sacrifice halo of Jesus of Nazareth has descended upon their sons and that God has taken them unto himself."

Richland Mayors, Trustees to Form Defense Council

Richland county commissioners prepared today to set up a county civilian defense organization after conferring in Columbus yesterday with Courtney Burton, executive secretary of the Ohio State Defense council, who asked them to take immediate action to form a county council.

C. L. Mitchell, chairman of the board of commissioners, said he would call a meeting early next week of mayors of county villages, chairmen of the trustees in the 18 townships, and other community leaders who are expected to comprise the new civilian defense unit.

Burton told the commissioners yesterday that every community in the county must be represented by an organization which will direct first aid training, appoint air raid wardens, and take other necessary steps to protect the populace in the event of an air raid.

Taken to task earlier this week by Burton for failing to name a county council, the commissioners explained they had not been instructed in the requirements of the state council.

Tugmen Return To Work Pending Wage Negotiations.

CLEVELAND—(INS)—A two-day walkout of 36 licensed tugmen, without whose aid the ore and coal-laden lake freighters cannot move up the kinky Cuyahoga river to steel plants, ended today as they returned to work pending wage dispute negotiations between representatives of the Great Lakes Towing company, union president Capt. John L. McCaffery, and Dan F. Hurley, federal labor conciliator for the Cleveland district.

In top photo, battle-shocked American and Filipino soldiers are shown lying on stretchers awaiting medical attention after having been carried from the front lines. In lower left picture, An American soldier pauses to give a dying Japanese water from his canteen somewhere along the Bataan front. Lower right is Captain Arthur Weymuth, the "one man army" as he prepared to go into battle at Bataan. He is credited with killing more than 100 Japanese during his lone raids behind enemy lines.

FDR Reveals Consideration of Enrolling Female Workers.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— President Roosevelt disclosed today that, in connection with studies for mobilization of man power for war industries, the government was considering voluntary registration for all women 18 to 65 years of age.

Probably within a week, Mr. Roosevelt asserted, some decision will be reached on how to go about channeling manpower into war jobs.

He said there had been talk of a voluntary registration for women on the next registration day for men up to 65, on April 27. If, and he emphasized the if, it is decided to register women, a date will be set later on.

TALK ATTACK

Marshall and British Leaders Confer in London.

LONDON — (U.P.) — Gen. George C. Marshall, United States chief of staff, hurried to the war office today apparently in response to an urgent summons to confer with the chiefs of Britain's fighting services.

Harry L. Hopkins, lease-lend administrator, at the same time started a series of conferences with British war cabinet members. Reliable informants said that both Marshall and Hopkins in their conferences today were discussing the urgent necessity for Allied offensive action.

It was learned that one of the themes of Hopkins' talks with Prime Minister Winston Churchill and other British leaders was that the United States did not want to wait until it gained mass superiority in weight and amount of war material but felt it must concentrate present resources for immediate use to seize the initiative from the Axis.

BATAAN SPURS DEMANDS FOR LONGER HOURS

Legislators See Increased Public Pressure as Result of Defeat.

REASONABLE PAY, GOAL

Senator Says Citizens Will Not Tolerate Excess In War Profits.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Increased public pressure for legislation to lengthen the work week, slash production profits and eliminate extravagance and waste in the war effort was forecast today by congressional leaders gauging domestic reacton to the military defeat on Bataan.

Almost without exception, informed legislators foresaw mounting public irritation against any obstruction on the production program—an attitude one veteran senator said could be attributed to the general feeling that while the people should not interfere in military strategy, they had a prime responsibility for all-out production.

Senator George (D.-Ga.) said he believed Americans on the home front feel it is time for major sacrifices.

"In my judgment," George told reporters, "the American people are in a frame of mind where they are not going to tolerate anything more than the most reasonable of wages or profits. They are going to demand that everybody work a full 48 hour week at regular pay, that profits be held to a minimum and that waste and inefficiency be eliminated.

George advocated voluntary suspension of the law requiring overtime pay for all work over 48 hours and has declared for a special war profits tax.

Senator Pepper (D.-Fla.) said the loss of Bataan to the Japanese ought to remove any impediment that has existed to the full mobilation of the country's manpower and resources in the war effort.

Pepper advocates over-all government control of wages and prices.

On the other hand, Senator Taft (R.-Ohio) said he thought a reasonable amount of profits

War Savings Bond Pledge Day to Be Observed May 1

Ohio will observe War Savings Bond Pledge Day on May 1, officers of the state War Savings program announced last night at a rally of 150 bond sale committeemen from Richland and eight other counties at the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

On that date, workers will start a drive designed to provide contact with every income-earner in the state, to obtain from him a pledge showing the amount of bonds and stamps he will buy regularly by the week or month for the duration of the war.

This will be Ohio's share in helping Uncle Sam complete an inventory of the nation's intentions to provide financial aid to the government, said last night's principal speaker, Harold H. Bredlow, director and executive secretary of the state bond sale organization.

"Deposits and reserves of banks and insurance companies are known," said Bredlow. "However, to complete this picture your treasury department must know what it may expect in voluntary

Torpedo Boats Sink Jap Ship; Fortress Holds

Wainwright Reports Communication to Mainland Broken But Flag Flies Over Corregidor; U. S. Craft Attack Invaders Off Cebu.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—The war department reported today that American torpedo boats sank a Japanese cruiser off Cebu in the central Philippines but that on the Bataan peninsula fighting apparently had ceased.

A communique said that Lieutenant General Jonathan M. Wainwright reported this morning that all communication between Bataan, where his American-Filipino force of 36,853 effectives was crushed, and the fortress island of Corregidor had been cut off for nearly twenty-four hours.

(The Japanese news agency at 5 a. m. Eastern War Time, today said, however, fighting was still in progress on Bataan. In some quarters this was interpreted as enemy propaganda to prevent Corregidor guns from shelling Bataan.)

"General Wainwright declared that our flag still flies on the beleaguered island fortress of Corregidor," the war department said.

Corregidor was raided frequently yesterday by heavy bombers, and Japanese artillery hammered at the island forts both from the peninsula and the south shore of Manila bay.

No material damage resulted, however, the communique said. The fort's guns refrained from replying to the shelling from Bataan to avoid risking hits on defending troops still on the peninsula.

The cruiser reported sunk was one of a fleet of five warships and ten transports which the war department said apparently comprised an invasion fleet landing troops in Cebu.

The fleet was attacked by the torpedo boats, which had dealt effective blows to the foe before being transferred south from the main fighting front.

The communique failed to state whether the invasion landing was being made only at the city of Cebu, second only to Manila in size and importance, or also on the island of the same name. The city is about 350 air miles south of Manila.

The city has been shelled repeatedly from the sea but hitherto had escaped invasion, and meanwhile served as an important transport and communication point for unoccupied areas of the archipelago.

A commercial radio station at Cebu has been in communication with the United States for weeks, and was linked with inter-island stations elsewhere.

The war department said that General Wainwright in a message to President Roosevelt had expressed appreciation of the confidence placed in him by the commander in chief and had advised that everything possible had been done to hold Bataan with the limited force under his command.

A Tokyo broadcast said Corregidor guns put up a furious barrage against Japanese bombers which twice attacked the island stronghold yesterday and set fires that spread a smoke curtain over Manila bay.

Another Japanese wireless message said that during final stages of the Bataan battle an intensive earthquake rocked the whole of the peninsula, causing Filipino huts to crumble and starting several landslides.

General Wainwright has President Roosevelt's authorization to

NEW BLOW: Japs Sink British Aircraft Carrier Off Ceylon

(By United Press)

LONDON—Japanese planes have sunk the 22-year-old, 10,850-ton aircraft carrier Hermes off the coast of Ceylon in their second savage blow at the British fleet in Indian waters, the admiralty announced today.

Only yesterday the admiralty announced the sinking of the heavy 8-inch gun cruisers Dorsetshire and Cornwall by planes from the Japanese fleet operating in the Bay of Bengal.

The admiralty said the Japanese claim that additional cruisers also had been sunk off Trincomalee, on the northeast coast of Ceylon, was known to be "quite untrue."

(Japanese imperial headquarters asserted that the Hermes and "10 other craft," including a light cruiser of the Birmingham class, a second of the Emerald class, a destroyer, a tanker and six merchant vessels had been sunk and said a light cruiser of the Leander type had been crippled beyond repair.

(Birmingham is a heavy cruiser of 9,100 tons but has 6-inch instead of 8-inch guns. Emerald is a 7,550-ton 6-inch gun cruiser and Leander is 7,270 6-inch gun cruiser.)

The Hermes was only about 10 miles offshore when she was sunk, the admiralty said, and it was probable that a large part of her crew were saved.

Hermes was launched Sept. 11, 1919. The authoritative Jane's Fighting Ships lists her official

AGREE: India Leaders, British Ready to Announce New Accord

(By United Press)

NEW DELHI, India—British and Indian leaders hope to announce tonight or tomorrow a basic agreement on Indian defense and participation of Indians in the government pending implementation of Britain's offer of post-war dominion status, it was understood today.

Details of a defense compromise, which would give Indians a substantial share of control over broad defense policies, and on Indian participation in government remained to be negotiated.

But it seemed certain that agreement in principle had been reached and that neither side now considered the possibility of a break-up which had hung over the negotiations for many days.

Under the agreement reached between Sir Stafford Cripps, British war cabinet envoy, and members of the Nationalist All-India Congress working committee, the viceroy, the Marquess of Linlithgow, would have an executive council, corresponding to a cabinet, of 15 members.

Gen. Sir Archibald Wavell, commander in chief in India and Burma, would be a member of the council.

Indian leaders would have most seats in the council but the proportion assigned to the various Indian parties, including Moslems, remained to be determined.

Cripps and Maulana Azad, president of the All-India Congress, discussed yesterday the retake whatever action he sees fit, and it was considered unlikely that the Japanese would grant any terms which did not include surrender of Corregidor and other island forts which deny them the use of Manila bay.

Officials considered it doubtful that any sizable portion of the 36,853 American and Filipino fighters on the peninsula had been able to make the five-mile crossing from Mariveles bay to Corregidor. Heavy Japanese bombing of rearward areas Tuesday and Wednesday was believed to have been directed toward destroying barges and launches with which such a transfer might be made.

Regardless of the Corregidor outcome, the Japanese were believed to be rushing preparations to use the military energy released from the Luzon theater for new, bold strokes.

Reports from all fronts were examined by the United Nations command for indications of what the next Japanese campaign would be: a reinforced drive into Burma and India, an attempt to clean up the China war quickly, a surprise attack on Siberia, invasion of Australia, or a grand-scale thrust at Hawaii.

The Allies had to prepare against any and all of these. Officially there was no indication whether the United Nations knew the direction of the next Japanese offensive. Unofficial Washington, however, inclined to the view that the end of Bataan fighting had put Siberia next on the list.

Libyan War Grows; Reds Move Westward

(By Associated Press)

British and Axis troops fought with increasing violence on the North African desert today, while on the Soviet front, Vichy radio reports via Stockholm said Red army troops had crossed the frontier into White Russia and were continuing their advance.

The drive into White Russia, a Soviet republic, was said to have taken place in a sector 75 miles northwest of Smolensk, between Vitebsk and Nevel.

If continued, the thrust would be a serious treat to the important Vitebsk defenses guarding the flank of the German "escape corridor" from Moscow on the old Napoleonic road to Smolensk.

The Vichy radio, quoting German news agency dispatches, also reported mounting Soviet pressure in the Orel and Kharkov sectors, south of Moscow, and around Sevastopol, the long-besieged Russian naval base in the Crimea.

A bulletin from Adolf Hitler's field headquarters acknowledged heavy Red army attacks on the Kerch peninsula in the Crimea, but declared they had been repulsed and that Nazi gunners had knocked 82 Russian tanks out of action.

In North Africa, British headquarters reported that British troops in the renewed Libyan desert fighting had attacked two Axis columns and set tanks on fire.

Italy's high command said new clashes between British and Axis vanguards "resulted again to our complete advantage," and the German communique reported several British armored cars and guns destroyed or captured in the desert warfare.

The German account told of continued day and night assaults on bomb-battered Malta, British stronghold in the Mediterranean, which has experienced more than 2,000 air-raid alarms.

In Russia, Soviet dispatches told of renewed bloody slaughter of German reserves, reporting 5,670 Nazis killed. Two German divisions counter-attacking on the Kalinin front—the broad, general region northwest of Moscow—were reported routed after a fierce battle.

A Berlin radio broadcast conceded that Red army troops, attacking with many tanks, had broken through the German defense line north of Lake Ilmen, presumably around Novgorod, and dislodged advanced Nazi units.

Bad weather hampered British-German aerial operations overnight. The Germans said that naval artillery shot down three RAF bombers over Helgoland Bight and that light Nazi bombers bombed a gas works on the English south coast.

Japs Move Toward Burma Oil Field

CHUNGKING —(INS)— Reinforced Japanese troops were reported slowly driving ahead today on the western Burma front in the face of dogged British resistance.

With the rich Burmese oil fields as their goal, the Japanese and a group of 4,000 native guerillas were moving up both banks of the Irrawaddy river, having reached a point some 50 miles above Prome.

should be allowed, adding that excess earnings on war contracts ought to be taxed 90 per cent.

Opposing suspension of the 40-hour week, Taft urged that legislation be enacted to require approval by the war labor board of wages fixed in collective bargaining contracts. The Ohio senator opposed over-all price freezing.

Meanwhile, the senate had word from Donald M. Nelson, chairman of the war production board, that strikes had no appreciable effect on war industries in January or February. Nelson said less than one-fifth of one per cent of persons working in war production were involved in strikes or lockouts during that period.

Here Are Major Dates In Fight For Philippines

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—Here are the important dates in the four-month battle of the Philippines:

Dec. 10—First landings of Japanese troops confirmed by the war department.

Dec. 22—Eighty enemy ships carrying from 80,000 to 100,000 troops reported in Lingayen bay. Other landings are made south of Manila.

Dec. 29—Manila declared an open city, but is bombed nevertheless.

Jan. 2—Japanese enter Manila after American and Filipino forces concentrated for a defense of Bataan peninsula.

By the end of January Gen. Masaharu Homma had arrived on Luzon with heavy reinforcements and the Manila bay guns had smashed a concentration of enemy launches in the bay.

Jan. 26—An American offensive re-established the Bataan lines, driving the Japs back as far as five miles. Shortly afterwards Gen. Homma was reported to have committed suicide to atone for his failure to take Bataan and Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita, the conqueror of Singapore, took command.

March 17—General Douglas MacArthur was appointed commander of United Nations forces in the far Pacific and arrived in Australia.

March 28—Japs break Bataan line after many assaults; line restored.

April 5—Jap shock troops make gains they were able to extend the next day.

April 7—Defenders forced to withdraw to new positions during the night.

April 9—American and Filipino east flank is beaten back, and the physically-exhausted troops cannot hold the enemy onslaught. Bataan is "probably overcome."

British Damage Jap Ship, Get 18 Planes

COLOMBO, Ceylon —(U.P.)— British planes have scored near misses, calculated to cause material damage, on a Japanese aircraft carrier and have knocked out 18 Japanese planes in offensive-defensive operations against the Japanese invasion fleet in the Bay of Bengal, it was asserted officially today.

There were persistent but unconfirmed reports that strong British naval units might be in conflict with the invasion fleet soon and that a decisive battle was likely.

Bombing planes went to the attack against the Japanese fleet after reconnaissance planes had spotted it and, in addition to scoring near misses on the aircraft carrier, shot down four Japanese fighter planes, a communique of the Ceylon command said.

Of the big Japanese plane fleet which attacked the Trincomalee naval station on the northeast coast yesterday, six Japanese planes were destroyed for certain, six more were probably destroyed and two additional ones were damaged, it was said.

It was admitted that some British planes were still missing. But all reported indicated that the Japanese were driven away without being able to reach their targets and was said officially that damage was small. Some damage was admitted in the harbor and airdrome areas.

Britain had reported the loss of the heavy cruisers Dorsetshire and Cornwall by Japanese planes and the sinking of several merchant ships by aerial and warship attack.

It was indicated that the Japanese had two aircraft carriers, a protective screen of light cruisers and destroyers, and a submarine flotilla in the bay.

Books For Children

(Available at Mansfield Public Library)

Mansfield Public Library has two new adventure stories about children to please readers between 10 and 12 years of age. Since the main characters in each story are girls the books will be enjoyed most by girls but both are stories of families.

THE MOFFATS by Eleanor Estes—Jane Moffat and her sister and two brothers lived in the yellow house half-way between the ends of New Dollar Street. When the "For Sale" sign was tacked on their house the thought of leaving it made it seem more like home. Their adventures continue through the year with Jane's encounter with the chief of police, Rufus' train ride on the first day of school, the ghost in the attic on Hallowe'en, and the Sunday trip to the Salvation Army Meeting.

THEN CAME ADVENTURE by Emma Brock—The MacPherson's and the Torgerson's had a secret island where they were Pirates until the Botany Lady discovered it, and then they became detectives to see why she should be there. At her suggestion they became Foresters in real Paul Bunyan country. The story is generously sprinkled with songs and legends appropriate to the tale.

bond buying during the months ahead.

"The recommendations of the congress affecting the amount to be raised in direct taxation during the next fiscal year will, to a great extent, be determined by the result of this inventory."

Bredlow outlined complete plans to the assembled bond workers as to conduct of the pledge activity. He discussed in detail the forms and supplies needed by the workers in obtaining the pledges, and urged them to study carefully treasury instructions for the activity.

Calling on the workers to put forth their greatest efforts in the bond sales activity, Bredlow said the program is being backed by "the greatest promotional campaign ever conducted in America for the sale of any item." He paid tribute to the workers for their results to date, and gave special credit to the newspaper carrier boys who are salesmen for Uncle Sam's bonds and stamps.

"Now is the time for action," he declared. "Lip service approval of the bond program is not enough. Buying non-essentials means direct competition with the government. Every resource of the nation—raw materials, production, transportation facilities and manpower—are being mobilized for an 'all out' war effort. Therefore, we must buy bonds, to our limit, to finance war buying, to check inflation, to avoid excess taxes, and to finance the peace."

Importance of the voluntary payroll deduction plan for purchase of the bonds was cited by another speaker, Theodore A. Wagner, economic consultant for the state group. Treasury officials expect that 75 per cent of the total bond purchases will be made through this plan, he said.

Chairman of last night's meeting, one of the 16 regional sessions being conducted in the state to launch the pledge activity and stimulate the bond sales, was Paul M. Eliot, chairman of the Richland county sale committee. He introduced county chairmen present from Morrow, Ashland, Crawford, Erie, Knox, Huron, Wyandot, and Marion counties.

Wavell would remain responsible to the British war cabinet on matters affecting strategy and general staff operations.

It was still to be decided just what duties would be assigned to Wavell and an Indian defense or defense co-ordination minister aside from strategic and operational problems, and it was indicated that negotiation of this question might take some time.

Nehru Urges India Rally For Defense

NEW DELHI, India—(AP)—Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru told Indians today that their duty, "whatever the results of negotiations with Sir Stafford Cripps," was to "serve and defend India to the uttermost."

The leader of the Hindu all-India congress party made his exhortation to his countrymen in opening a campaign to rally Indians to the defense of their country—another omen that the delicate, complex negotiations to give India dominion status after the war are nearing success.

Reports were heard of fresh hitches in Sir Stafford's negotiations, however. Certain members of the All-India congress party working committee were said to have found changes in the original British proposals unsatisfactory now that these have been fully explained. The committee's final decision is expected soon.

After long talks with the British envoy, Nehru conferred last night with Louis Johnson, President Roosevelt's personal emissary.

The congress party was reported yesterday to have indicated its readiness to accept Britain's modified offer—a national government for India now, with an Indian in the vital office of defense minister, and dominion status later.

heated glaring by the cabinet official. When Meyer attempted to leave after the dinner, Jones stepped up and seized the publisher rather violently.

Jones, who doubles as federal loan administrator, practically picked Meyer up by the shoulders and shook him severely. Meyer lost his glasses, but recovered quickly, swinging a right. It missed. The publisher let fly another right but Jones neatly sidestepped.

When Meyer failed to connect with a third blow, a combination left jab, hook and what-have-you, Jones again took the offensive with his shaking tactics.

At this point, bystanders stepped in and abruptly ended the fracas, rushing the two battlers off into the night.

The editorial that apparently caused the battle was entitled "Mr. Jones' Excuses," and declared that the cabinet member had repeatedly tried to blame the rubber crisis on others and had attempted to shield himself behind President Roosevelt.

Jones, a 6-foot, 3-inch Texan, is 68 and himself a newspaper publisher. Meyer is two years younger, but weighs 30 pounds less than his erstwhile opponent.

VICHY —(AP)— German authorities notified the population of the costal city of Brest on the English channel today to be ready for a proclamation of a state of siege without advance notice.

—to keep my car from "running a fever"?

Scale and rust in your car's cooling system act like insulation around a steam pipe—keep the heat in instead of letting it out. And the hotter your engine runs, the more danger of serious damage. Keep engine temperature normal by having the cooling system thoroughly cleaned at least twice a year—now and in the Fall—and add a rust inhibitor for Summer driving. PAY TRIBUTE TO TWO RICHLAND WAR VICTIMS

Flags at Half Mast in City; Fears Held For 7 Others In Bataan Area.

at St. Luke's Lutheran church, with Rev. H. S. Garnes officiating.

Charles Fuchs, president of Mansfield Kiwanis Club, announced that club members will attend the services in body. Lieut. Spreng was a member of the club, as is his father.

The Spreng family today had received no further word from the war department. The telegram advising them of the death stated that a letter would follow.

William Parsel, of near Plymouth, father of Captain Parsel, received a telegram identical to that received by the Sprengs. He previously had been notified by telephone of the death of his son by the latter's wife, who resides in Atlanta, Ga.

Spreng, who received word of his son's death Wednesday night, broke the sad news to his wife when he met her in Louisville yesterday afternoon on her arrival there from Gulfport, Miss., where she had been visiting.

They returned to Mansfield this morning, and were accompanied by another son, Second Lieut. Richard Spreng, who is stationed with the Quartermaster's Supply department at Jeffersonville, Ind. The family has two other sons, Harold P. and Charles K., and a daughter, Mrs. Mary Finical, all of Mansfield.

Lieut. Spreng, who enlisted in the Air Corps in September, 1940, was a bombardier instructor. Captain Parsel recently won the Distinguished Flying cross for displaying extraordinary courage in battling the Japanese over the Philippines.

Although details were not available, it was believed probable that both had been killed in the same accident Recent word to their families from both fliers stated that they were in India.

Today's announcement by the war department that "fighting on Bataan peninsula has ceased" did little to allay the fears that were created here by yesterday's disclosure that a force of 36,800 Americans and Filipinos there had gone down fighting before overwhelming superior Japanese odds.

Five Mansfielders—Albert L. Allen, Paul Grassick, George Zimmerman, Earl Charles, and John E. Robinette, are members of a tank battalion at Bataan. Also members of the same company are Robert Miller of R. D. 4 and John Minner of Port Clinton, a brother of Mrs. A. C. Adams of Mansfield. Another Mansfielder, Nelson B. Hale, is an infantryman at Bataan.

At least 27 other Ottawa county residents, in addition to Minner, were with the outnumbered forces of General Wainwright. The tank unit was under the command of Captain Harold Collins of Lacarne, a cousin of A. C. Adams of Mansfield.

Secretary of War Stimson said he could not tell how many of the 36,800 would be in each of the categories of casualties — killed captured, or wounded, but that every effort was being made to get them to Corregidor. It appeared doubtful, however, that any substantial number could be evacuated.

EMPLOYE-MANAGEMENT BOARD POOLS IDEAS ON PRODUCTION

Establishment of an employe-management "war production committee" to pool ideas for expediting war production by the Mansfield Westinghouse plant was announced today by C. L. Van Derau, works manager.

Formation of the group, made up of three representatives of the employes and three of management, is part of a program being carried out at all Westinghouse plants. The company now is engaged more than 90 per cent in production of war orders.

R. O. Richards, of 92 Glenwood boulevard, one of the management representatives, was named chairman of the committee A resident of Mansfield for 13 years and a Westinghouse employe for most of that period, he now is supervisor of employe activity in the plant industrial relations department.

The employe representatives, designated by Local 711, United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers' union, are:

Otis E. Williams, 314 West Fifth street, a resident of Mansfield for 20 years and a Westinghouse employe for 13, and a union shop steward.

James L. Young, 179 West Fourth street, a Westinghouse employe for eight years, a union shop steward and trustee.

James Anderson, Pulver List road, a resident of Mansfield for 30 years, a Mansfield plant employe for 18, and a trustee of the union.

Management representatives, in addition to Richards are:

Elmer E. Croushore, 313 West Fourth street, production supervisor and a Westinghouse employe for 16 years.

A. H. Fankhauser, 507 West Third street, assistant supervisor of the plant salvage division, a native of Mansfield and a Westinghouse employe for 18 years.

The local committee has held its organization meeting and is now engaged in regular conferences to develop a program of war production aid activities.

G. H. Bucher, president of Westinghouse, announced the formation of these committees in each of the company's plants in a telegram to Donald M. Nelson, chairman of the War Production board. His telegram said, in part:

"Joint employe-management committees for increased production are being set up immediately in all manufacturing divisions of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company, in line with your suggestion to the nation's industries . . .

"Westinghouse and all its employes are proud to be among the first to accept your excellent suggestion for pooling their ideas for greater output of materials needed to win this war. Westinghouse has already increased its production 80 per cent since the summer of 1940, and in several of our major plants devoted entirely to war work, production has been increased as much as 300 per cent in the past 18 months. We are seeking every possible means of increasing production over these figures."

COURT OUTLAWS REDISTRICTING

Decision Returns Richland County to 29th-31st Senatorial District.

state senators in the approaching election.

In going back to the old 27th-29th district, Richland county will return to one that usually is Republican and now has two Republican senators, Joseph Jameson and P. H. Rogers, both of Lorain county.

The redistricting ordered last year by the state board had placed Richland county with the 31st district, normally Democratic.

The clouded redistricting picture had kept senatorial candidates uncertain about the counties in which they should conduct their primary campaigns. Two Richland countains, Ralph Lutz, Lexington, Democret, and C. J. Pittenger, Shelby, Republican, have already announced their candidacies for the senatorial posts.

Senator Jameson of Lorain, who has represented Richland county and the 27th-29th district for the past two years, also is a candidate for re-election.

The plan killed by the supreme court was drawn up by Auditor Ferguson and Secretary of Sate Sweeney, both Democrats, and although he objected to it, the governor concurred as a matter of form since the approval of two of the three designated state officials was enough to make the plan effective.

It has been charged that the plan so re-districted the state that the Republican party stood to lose several state senate seats normally assured it under the existing apportionment.

The supreme court majority opinion recited that the constitution of 1851 set up the present plan of reapportionment, putting it in the hands of an ex-officio board, in order to remove it from the control of the legislature where there had been much gerrymandering, or re-districting for political purpose.

It had been the contention of the attorney general, and the supreme court majority upheld him, that the ex-officio board lacked authority to split up existing districts so long as proper representation of the residents therein did not require it.

Referring to the Ferguson-Sweeney re-districting plan, the supreme court observed:

"Never before since the framing of the constitution in 1851 has such a course been pursued. In fact, never in that time had any senatorial district formed by combination of two or more districts been thereafter broken up by reapportionment.

The first census of the United States, taken in 1790, revealed a population of 4,000,000.

MANSFIELD, OHIO, FRIDAY, APRIL 10, 1942.

Those Gallant Defenders of Bataan

THE FALL of Bataan brings the end of another gloomy chapter in the grim story of war in the Far East.

The wonder is not that the defense of Bataan was finally beaten down. The great wonder is that such a small and poorly equipped force of Americans and Filipinos were able to stand out for so many weeks against such overwhelming odds.

It will be days, possibly weeks, before the full record of the Bataan and Corregidor phases of far eastern warfare will become available, and it can only be hoped that some way is being found to evacuate the thousands of brave defenders without greater loss of lives than has thus far occurred.

The suspense under which parents, and other close relatives of service men who are known to be in war zones, must live during times of uncertainty as to the welfare of loved ones, is a tragic part of duty on the home front.

It is in times such as this that there is fuller realization of the relative unimportance of sacrifices which involve no more than giving up some of the comforts, conveniences and luxuries to which Americans have become accustomed.

Whether a work week should be 40 or 48 hours; dissension that results in strikes; bickering over overtime pay, and the like, all seem petty matters when set against the fact that men are dying, and other men will die in military service to which they are no more strongly obligated than are the industrial workers who are depended upon to provide the planes, ships, tanks, guns and other supplies necessary to carrying on the war to final victory.

And those conscienceless war profiteers—few or many—what must be the feeling toward them by men in the service and by those who are sincerely interested in this nation's armed forces?

Unity of thought is not attainable, but there can at least be unity of action in following national leadership toward quickest possible accomplishment of the all-out war effort to which America is pledged.

The ugly fact that must be faced is that, on the basis of present estimates, THE WAR IS BEING LOST!

The United States of America will be an important factor in determining how and when the trend of warfare will be turned toward eventual victory.

Slave Labor In Nazi Germany

WHILE several million Germans are engaged in fighting wars of conquest, and garrisoning countries already conquered, their place is taken at home by foreign labor. Much of this labor consists of prisoners of war. By the modern laws of warfare captured troops may be used under civilized restrictions for constructive work. It amounts to slave labor, for which the prisoners are allowed merely enough food and other supplies to keep them alive and working, but is considered legitimate.

There is also a very large group of workers, both men and women, from the civilian population of conquered countries, who have been taken to Germany against their will to work likewise for the Nazi war machine, with the least possible compensation. This is slavery of a kind that has not been known in Europe for centuries.

Besides these groups, there are great numbers of people drawn from countries of central and western Europe, regarded as voluntary workers, who are treated a little more generously, but who would not make munitions for Hitler if they were not driven by fear, for their families if not for themselves.

The work done by all these unwilling helpers is essential to the Nazi juggernaut and a part of the Hitler system, which will last as long as Hitler lasts—maybe longer. It is one of the bulwarks of force and terror that must be destroyed, along with the Nazi armies, to restore a free world. The resentment it arouses is one of the forces working for freedom.

When Tankers Are Sunk

THE AVERAGE single-screw tanker carries 5,425,000 gallons of gas. The larger, double-screw tanker carries 7,000,000. Consider that for a moment. Suppose you could drive forty miles an hour, 24 hours a day. That's 960 miles. Allow yourself 16 miles to the gallon. That's 60 gallons for the 24 hours. Suppose you could do that 350 days a year.

Driving your car as hard as that—which nobody really does—you'd use 21,000 gallons of gas in your 350-day year. It looks as if you could keep 258 cars going at that rate with 5,425,000 gallons of gas, doesn't it? Or 333 with 7,000,000?

These are, of course, round numbers. But they illustrate the fact that every tanker sunk by the Axis can stall a lot of cars for a year.

The figures work both ways. German and Japanese oil-carrying ships are sunk likewise, and often. It would be an interesting job to figure out, every time that happens, just how many Axis planes or tanks are stalled. We can spare ships and oil better than can the Axis. But the figures do show the connection between sunken tankers and gasless cars. They also explain talk about rationing gasoline.

Shorter Funeral Processions

LARGER cities are already beginning to note a considerable reduction in the length of funeral processions and anticipate increased trend along this line as economy in use of private cars becomes more general.

In one city it has been suggested that funeral processions to cemeteries be limited to the immediate family of the deceased, which seems to serve a natural desire for family privacy following the service attended by friends.

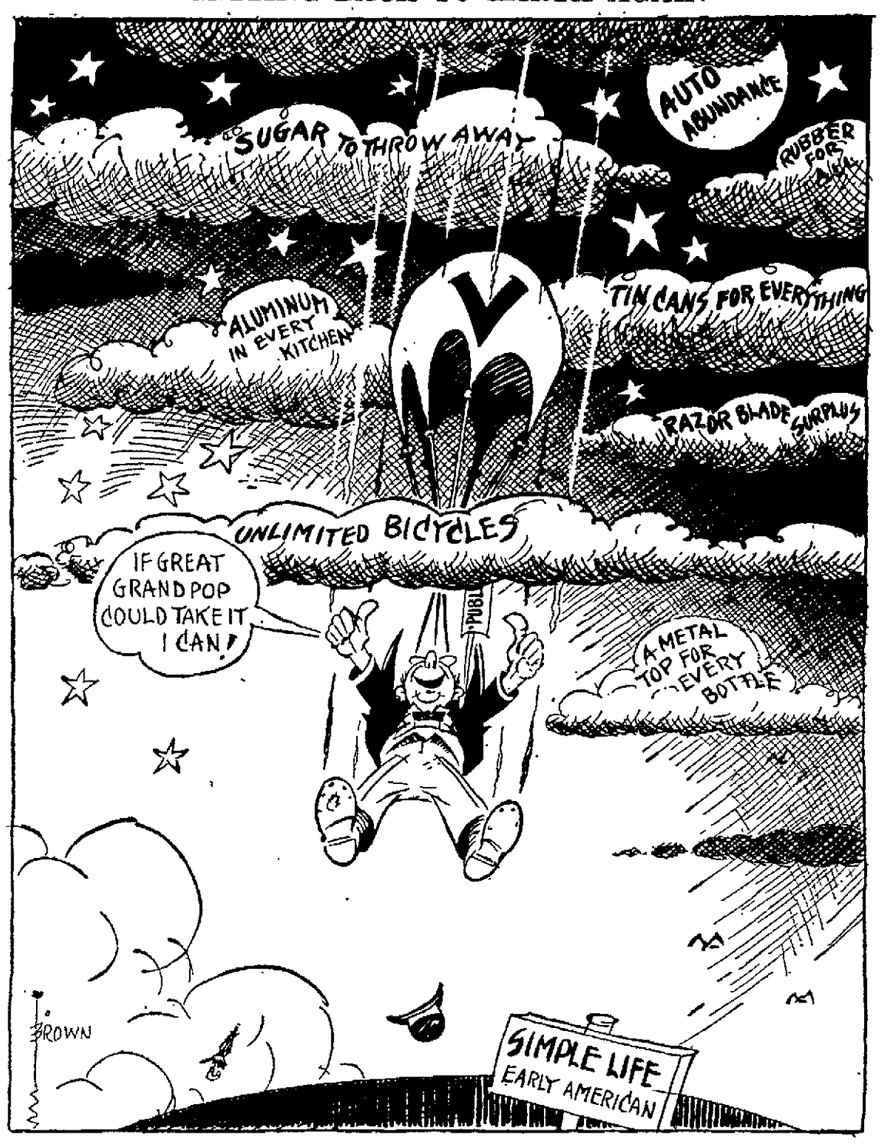
An association of retail druggists in Chicago is considering keeping stores open only 98 hours a week—and some old-time pharmacists will probably wonder what can be done with this new leisure.

A nature note reveals: "A charging tiger will stop if slapped across the nose with a newspaper"—so make sure to always have a newspaper handy for such an emergency.

The income tax idea that a child is no longer a "dependent" after age 18 has probably never been referred to the father of a boy or girl in college.

Who can remember when one of Mansfield's up-town girls was "talked about" because it was rumored around that she smoked cigarets?

GETTING BACK TO EARTH AGAIN



Censorship Policies Are Puzzling

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON — This question of what information newspapers can print with the approval of the army and navy is getting more curious with every new development.

It is impossible, without violating the very points in question, to use illustrations. One of the examples, it may be said, concerned a troop movement. Within a few days after the troops left, newspapers in a certain port printed full details, giving the name of the ship, the number of men aboard, what the military units were, and the DESTINATION.

Now this story—in wartime—was of such an obviously unprintable character, that none of the wire services carried it. Hence the only publication was in the immediate vicinity. However, copies of most newspapers are mailed to exchange editors of papers in other cities, to former residents of the city of publication who want to keep up with local happenings, and to various other individuals who subscribe.

THE question arises as to the seriousness of this sort of local publication. Beyond question it was common gossip in the port mentioned that this particular troop ship was sailing. It must have been common gossip how many troops she was carrying and what the units were. Obviously, also, it was pretty well known around that port what her destination was, because the reporters of the paper learned it without benefit of official announcement.

The point of all this is that the enemy beyond any shadow of doubt, has plenty of spies and observers in every port. They pick up all the gossip and particularly the water-front gossip. Everyone remembers the story of the German consul who sat on the wharf and made notes as the British were landing in Greece. BEFORE the Nazis invaded Greece but when everybody knew they were going to do so, and the Italians already had done so.

The only real difficulty in the path of the enemy agents is in transmitting information to their superiors. Whether that is helped by local publication seems difficult to answer. The army and navy seem to think it is.

But this particular story, which so roused the ire of the war department, was not published until four or five days AFTER the sailing. In other words, Axis agents in that city must have had all the information four or five days BEFORE it was published. If they transmitted it, then publication of it days later does not seem to have involved any considerable advantage to the enemy.

ON THE other hand two of the very best stories of the war have been kicking around Washington for weeks as this is written. The writer knows they are true. One of the two is certainly known to Tokyo. High officials, talking about it, leave no doubt of this whatever. The other may not be known to Berlin, though it IS known there if Axis agents in certain cities have any way of transmitting information.

But BOTH stories would arouse enthusiasm in this country if they could be printed. And high officers have admitted to newspaper men that they do not understand why they are not released.

NEW YORK—Joe E. Lewis is nothing if not impromptu . . . When something pops into his head, he says it . . . Not vindictively, for that isn't Joe's way . . .

But joshingly, for fun . . . Anything to get a laugh . . .

Joe's last night in town was at the Copacabana . . . His long engagement ended on a little unprogrammed note that saw Tyrone Power playing horse to his Lady Godiva . . . It happened like this . . . Joe was in the middle of his song, the one about "Sam, you made the pants too long" . . .

The place was beginning to look like it had elastic walls . . . Although it was crowded, still the waiters found space for additional tables . . .

THEN Tyrone Power and some friends came in . . . As I mentioned, Joe was turning his grinning pan to the faces, singing his famous song about "Sam, you made the pants too long."

In the middle of his song, right in the middle of the line that goes "Sam, you made the vest all right" . . . Joe stopped . . . Some of the people weren't listening to him . . . They were craning their necks and saying, "There's Tyrone Power . . . Right over there . . . That's Tyrone Power" . . .

When Joe stopped singing, the silence sort of reached out and tapped those people on the head . . . They looked back at Joe, who grinned.

"I been thinking," said Joe, "that you people spend a lot of money when you come here, and sometimes you don't spend it wisely . . . I mean, take a guy who brings a doll in here for a couple hours, and eats, and has a little wine, and when it's time to go he's got a bill of $18 or $20 to pay . . . If you pay $20 for a couple hours, that means you pay $10 for maybe one hour . . . And at that rate it's about $2.50 for a quarter hour. Now you take me, I been talking to you like this about 15 minutes and it's cost you two bucks and a half . . . Isn't that silly, now, to waste all that money, when you can get Tyrone Power for 35 cents with the March of Time and Donald Duck thrown in? . . . You've been sitting here spending all that money by making me talk, just because an actor, one of them screeeeeen actors, come in . . . And all the time you can go down the street to Loew's State and get him for 35 cents with a news reel and a Silly Symphony thrown in."

JOE E. LEWIS has seldom played to more applause that greeted this sally. New Yorkers love to be lectured by the right guy, and Joe is that guy. They laughed and they cheered and wished him well, for that was Joe's last trick, and by now he is in Hollywood, for his first picture.

I forgot to add that the guy who laughed loudest of all was that actor, that screeeeeen actor, Tyrone Power.

Bikes For War Workers.

Well, who has the better right to a bicycle—an overweight mamma who thinks bicycling might be an easy way to regain her girlish figure or a war worker who needs transportation between home and factory?

That's an easy one to answer. The war production board evidently thought so, too, for it decreed this week that all bicycles are to be reserved for war workers.

Four months ago we'd have said a man was crazy if he'd tried to tell us that the United States government was going to forbid the sale of toothpaste tubes without trade-ins and follow up by rationing bicycles. Now we accept these things as a matter of course. And probably we ain't seen nothin' yet.—Akron Beacon-Journal.

Battle Rages Over Attempt To Freeze Wages, Prices, Profits

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—Hottest home front problem furrowing inner circle brows is the question of freezing wages, prices and profits.

With several key pay-increase demands pending before the War Labor Board, the AFL and CIO are vehemently opposed to a wage blanket. They contend that with war contractors making huge profits on one hand and living costs rising steadily on the other, workers are entitled to more pay.

Certain farm and business elements also have voiced strong opposition to the freezing proposal on various grounds.

Chief freezing advocate in the inner circle is hard-boiled Price Administrator Leon Henderson, to whom the menace of disastrous inflation is an ever-present nightmare. Henderson's insistence on wage controls has brought down on his head bitter labor recriminations.

But he is sticking to his guns and, at a secret session of the entire War Labor Board, hammered home his argument with a barrage of sizzling statistics. These are the principal points made by Henderson:

1. That henceforth 50 to 60 per cent of wage increases will come out of the U. S. treasury—that is, tax revenue—and not out of corporation profits as contended by the AFL and CIO.

2. That an increase of 15 per cent in basic wage rates if extended throughout industry would have "disastrous" effect on the cost of living.

3. That average industrial hourly earnings since September, 1939, the start of the war, have risen twice as much as the cost of living. That weekly earnings have risen three times as much. Further, that in December, 1941, real hourly earnings were 11 per cent above the September, 1939, level and real weekly earnings 25 per cent higher.

4. That the principle of adjusting wages to living costs must be limited to workers receiving "substandard" pay. The spread between them and the better organized and better paid workers must be reduced; otherwise, Henderson held, the latter will get an "even bigger piece of the pie."

Note—Henderson's legal aides maintain that under the Price Control Act, the War Labor Board is required to consult with him before granting a pay increase. The board does not have to accept his recommendations, but the lawyers say the board must get Henderson's views.

Dark In Philippines.

THOSE who have talked with High Commissioner Francis B. Sayre since his return from the Philippines get the impression that the American soldiers who have been fighting on Bataan may never get out alive.

Sayre doesn't say this in so many words, but his other comments add up to this conclusion.

Sayre is politely scornful of the stories that "we have already won the battle of the Pacific supply routes." He points out that the end of our supply routes—southern Australian ports — is 4,000 miles from Manila.

There's a "tremendous task" of getting supplies to Australia, in the first place, Sayre says. Then there's the difficulty of transportation by rail across a continent as large as the United States, and after that a still more difficult shipping problem across the barrier of the Japanese-occupied Netherlands East Indies.

While this tedious effort is going on, the men in Corregidor are "living like rats underground," in a place which the Japanese could take if they cared to pay the price. If they don't they merely have to sit at the threshold, enjoying command of both air and sea, and wait for the American soldiers to starve.

The most discouraging element is that the men on Bataan have only limited supplies, and when those supplies are gone, they must face not one enemy but two—the Japs and starvation.

Army Nerve Center.

ONE DAY recently, moving vans pulled up at the heavily guarded rear entrance of the public health building on Constitution avenue, delivered equipment that had to do with the over-all health of the world—the belongings of the British military staff which co-operates with the American staff in planning war strategy.

The British staff occupied the entire third floor of the building, Surgeon General Parran and his health experts having long since departed. Every room in the building now is tenanted by men in uniform. The first two floors are occupied by American officers.

In this building are held meetings of the joint chiefs of staff (U. S. army with U. S. navy); also the combined chiefs of staff (joint chiefs plus British chiefs, with occasional Dutch or Chinese chiefs thrown in).

This is the building where they used to keep track of the number of cases of measles in the public schools.

Enough News.

RAZOR-TONGUED Secretary Harold Ickes doesn't like the press and the press generally reciprocates this dislike. So it was with much surprise that the house appropriations committee noted a $100 increase for the purchase of newspapers in Ickes' new budget.

"Do you think that it is necessary at this time?" demanded Representative Robert Rich, Pennsylvania New Deal hater.

"That item is for the power division," broke in Assistant Secretary of Interior Ebert K. Burlew.

"Yes, the power division wanted that," grinned Ickes. "I didn't ask for the money. Heaven knows, I don't want to read any more newspapers."

Merry-Go-Round.

PHILIPPINE Commissioner J. M. ("Mike") Elizalde says it's now or never for the Japs on Bataan peninsula. If they don't capture Corregidor before the wet season begins next month, rain and typhoons will throw their military machine completely out of gear. . . . Lean Henderson and Walter Timmis were both in Swarthmore college at the same time. Today both are Washington officials, but on opposite sides of the fence. Henderson is a relentless all-outer, while Timmis, head of WPB's plumbing and heating branch, is a "business as usual" advocate. . . . Just outside the office of Vice President Wallace, large red letters painted on the walls read, "Air Raid Shelter Area." . . . It's confusing enough to have three congressmen by the name of Ford, but two of them (Thomas F. and Leland M.) come from the same state—California.

Watching Trends

—By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—The capital in wartime:

There have been complaints, half serious, in my neighborhood, which is just a lazy's man's stroll from the National Zoo, that all those wild animals and snakes would be worse than demolition bombs if they got loose in an air raid. The fears from the other side of Rock Creek Park, which is a little more populous, have been even more pronounced. The snakes (the zoo has one of the world's choicest nests of them), the inhabitants of the lion house, and the bars apparently worry nearby residents most.

If the precautions of the London Zoo, which has been blitzed many times, are adequate, the fears of our local citizenry are something of a laugh. In London, I'm told, the great zoo moved its pandas to the hinterlands (because they were so valuable); and their elephant herd, because if it stampeded, the pachyderms probably would kill themselves.

Here, without making any announcements to allay the neighborhood's fearful, Zoo Director William M. Mann has been taking some precautions. He has traded off his most poisonous reptiles—cobras, rattlesnakes, vipers, etc. The zoo is blacked out from dusk to dawn. The keepers and watchmen have guns that will stop anything from a guinea hen to a bull elephant.

Zoo men everywhere, worry only about their charges' being killed in a blitz, not about their getting out. Any bomb close enough to blast the stone walls and iron bars that hold the animals inside would leave the more dangerous tenants in no condition to attack any one. Probably the worst thing that could happen to the zoo men would be for the monkeys to get loose. They are hard to catch.

Washington weather item (uncensored): Pertrurbed by constant reports that some 4,500 visiting soldiers, sailors and marines had to "sleep in the streets" (for somewhere other than a bed) every week-end, capital civilian defense officials organized a big survey for last week-end. It rained so hard for two days, you could NOT only NOT find a soldier, sailor or marine to survey, you couldn't even find a surveyor. The beds-for-buddies-in-the-service problems still is unsolved.

A Farmer's Diary

New Chore Wagon

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

OUR CHILDREN have had few toys from the store . . . but we have not cared. Farm children with imagination can easily entertain themselves. The water-wheels my brothers and I used to play with along our favorite rills, our homemade sleds and wagons which we made with odds and ends from father's shop—those are among my own fondest recollections. (In addition to farming, our father was a blacksmith, he repaired shoes, and was generally handy with tools.)

But our oldest boy determined on a chore wagon—both as tool and toy, and when, at Christmas time, the stores were out of them, he appointed me as purchaser of such a gift when the weather improved, and the yard was not too soft. Last week I brought the wagon home. It was the biggest one I could get—with sturdy red wheels, a long yellow body and bright green adjustable racks to make the bed.

Different ages of boy, I find, enjoy a wagon in different ways. Our two littlest fellows played with it an entire day, just pushing and pulling each other around the yard in the sunshine. When the one who will soon be seven came home from school, he was off like a whiz, down the hill for a rapid coast. The oldest brother devised a track with boundaries so that to steer the coaster successfully became a test of skill. He, too, oiled the wheels and scolded roundly because a screw came loose, advising me to invest a nickel in several more screws just in case we needed them.

The chores that must be done, and the extra time for play with a brand new wagon that their boyish hearts have longed for, for many days, mingle well to make a long springy moonlight evening quite complete.

They pile, four deep, into the spacious wagon gleaming red and yellow, high upon the barn bridge. One little push and down the beaten path the painted wagon roars. With steady hand the oldest boy guides his smaller charges along the pond, with perhaps a thrill if the two left wheels splash into the shallow edge. And I, looking on, know that memories of this time of work and play will always live. The thoughts of childhood and youth are "long long thoughts," that bear fruit far down the years to green old age.

Daily Bible Thought

Then came Peter to him, and said, Lord, how oft shall my brother sin against me, and I forgive him? Till seven times?—Matt. 18:21.

BEHIND SCENES FIGHT BREWING FOR DEMOCRATS

Candidates' Maneuvering For Support of Cuyahoga County Group.

(By International News Service)

CLEVELAND—While John McSweeney, Wooster, ranged the state today in an ear-to-ground survey of his chances of being nominated for governor, a behind-the-scenes battle was brewing as candidates sought the endorsement of the powerful Cuyahoga county Democratic organization.

Thus far McSweeney has made no declaration of candidacy but with Democratic National Committeeman Charles Swayer disavowing gubernatorial ambitions this year, most observers expect the former congressman and state welfare director to toss his hat into the ring soon.

Because Cuyahoga is the largest county, support of its party organization is coveted by all candidates. Already County Commissioner James A. Reynolds has started a movement to swing that support to McSweeney, pictured as a likely recipient because of the showing he made against Harold Burton in 1940.

In the U. S. senatorial contest that year, Burton, a Republican, lost his home county, Cuyahoga, to McSweeney, but won the election on downstate strength.

However, former Mayor Ray T. Miller, head of the county Democratic organization, does not believe the time has arrived for an open endorsement of any gubernatorial aspirant in the primary, and officially he is maintaining silence.

Those close to the organization say that State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson's chances of aid from that quarter in the primary wilted when his state examiners criticized the Cuyahoga County Election Board for spending money realized from the sale of old ballots for waste paper.

There was no definite indication of how much support the candidacy of Clarence H. Knisley, Bainbridge, a member of the state industrial commission, would receive from organization leaders in the largest county.

Frank A. Dye, Columbus lawyer, and Charles Hubbell, Cleveland attorney, are seeking the nomination, but observers consider Ferguson, Knisley and McSweeney, if he runs, as the candidiates likely to make the strongest races.

Shelving his own gubernatorial ambitions in the belief that the Democrats can win in November only if they unite behind the aspirant with the best chances of winning, Probate Judge J. H. Lamneck of Tuscarawas county, called upon the other candidates to withdraw in favor of McSweeney.

But both Ferguson and Knisley, each believing that he can win, made it plain that they would stay in the contest to the end. Nor have the other candidates indicated that they would follow Lamneck's advice.

"Immunize every child against diphtheria before May 1, 1942," is the slogan in Holmes county in accordance with the president's proclamation designating the first day of May as Child Health day and urging schools to exert every effort to see that every child is immunized by that time against diphtheria and smallpox.

Plans are made to visit the county schools in the following order, giving one injection of toxoid to protect against diphtheria: this week, Lakeville and Big Prairie schools; week of April 15, Nashville, Glenmont, Clark and Killbuck schools; and the week of April 20, Holmesville, Berlin and Walnutcreek schools.

LUCAS HOME HIT BY FIRE

Residence of Charles Airhart Damaged By Blaze Thursday.

LUCAS—In the first serious fire in Lucas for more than two years, the home of Charles Airhart, on route 39 at the western limits of the village, was badly damaged late Thursday afternoon.

Discovered by Kenneth Airhart, a grandson, when he returned from school, smoke was pouring out of the dwelling. He rushed to meet his grandfather who was returning from work and by the time they arrived at the house the entire interior of the dwelling was in flames.

Responding quickly to their first call in many months, members of the Lucas fire department poured both chemicals and water into the building for more than an hour before the flames were extinguished.

The fire is believed to have been started in the kitchen, according to Fire Chief Dale D. Peterson. No one had been in the residence for several hours before the blaze was discovered.

Both the building and its furnishings were badly damaged by smoke and water, much of which could have been prevented had the Lucas fire fighters been equipped with smoke masks, Peterson claimed.

Seriously hampered by smoke the firemen were forced to cut through the roof and siding several places in order to get at the blaze.

No estimate of the amount of damage could be made Thursday evening by Mr. Airhart, who stated that the loss was covered by insurance.

MEET WEDNESDAY

SHILOH—The B Square club will meet at the home of Mrs. George England, on Wednesday afternoon.

VICTORY DEPENDS ON A HEALTHY, STRONG AMERICA. . .

FOOD . . . PROPERLY PREPARED . . . will help to win the war . . . "America Needs You Strong," is a slogan of the United States Office of Defense Health and Welfare Service. More than ever NOW health is important. And health means eating the right foods. It doesn't cost any more to eat correctly than to eat foods inadequate in vitamin content. In the panel at the lower left our home economist tells you what foods the government says you should eat. Just as important is the manner in which you prepare those foods. For example very little water should be used; vegetables should be cooked in the shortest possible time; they should not be stirred unless absolutely necessary; the liquids should never be thrown away; they should be served as soon after cooking as possible. Cooking foods electrically—with an electric range or an electric roaster—makes it easy to cook vegetables and other foods properly, easily, and in the most healthful manner. So cook electrically. Do your part to make America strong.

YOUR HOME ECONOMIST

Irene Oberlin

Says, This is what the government recommends that every average man, woman, and child should eat every day for good health:

1. Milk—at least a pint for everyone, more for children—or cheese, or evaporated milk, or dried milk.
2. At least one of these: oranges, tomatoes, grapefruit, or raw cabbage.
3. One big helping—some raw, some cooked—of a green, leafy, or yellow vegetable.
4. Potatoes and apples—or other similar vegetables or fruits.
5. Lean Meat, Poultry, or Fish
6. At least 3 or 4 eggs a week, cooked any way you choose.
7. Bread and cereal—whole grain products or enriched bread.

ASHLAND COLLEGE MAY QUEEN WEDS

Miss Edith Frances Wilson Becomes Bride of Charles A. Swain of Lucas In New Jersey Church.

THE FIRST BRETHREN CHURCH in Sergeantsville, N. J., was the scene of a colorful Easter season wedding April 4 at 4 p. m. when marriage vows were exchanged by Miss Edith Frances Wilson, of Stockton, N. J., last year's Ashland college May Queen, and Charles A. Swain of Lucas.

The bride is a daughter of Mayor and Mrs. E. R. Wilson, of Stockton, N. J., while the bridegroom is the elder son of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Swain, of Lucas.

The impressive wedding service was solemnized beneath an arch of palms and forsythia by Rev. William A. Steffler, close friend of the bride's family, in the presence of a large congregation of guests assembled from several states.

Preceding the nuptials Miss Florence Perelli sang "Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life," "Because" and "I Love Thee." She was accompanied by Mrs. William S. Porte, aunt of the bride. During the ceremony the organist played several appropriate numbers including a composition written by the bridegroom.

Entering the church escorted by her father, the bride was charming in a gown of white slipper satin, fashioned with a long fitted bodice, sweetheart neckline, and long tapering sleeves. Her full skirt extended in a long train. Her bridal veil of tulle chantilly lace which reached to the end of the train, was attached to a peaked coronet of orange blossoms.

The bride carried a bouquet of white roses and baby's breath surrounding a white orchid. She also carried a white lace handkerchief, a memento of her maternal grandmother's wedding. Her only jewelry was a string of pearls given to her by the bridegroom.

Serving as maid-of-honor, Miss Esther Porte, cousin of the bride, wore a formal gown of pale blue net fashioned with sweetheart neckline, puffed sleeves, fitted bodice and full skirt with matching shoulder-length veil. She carried a bouquet of yellow daisies and baby iris.

The bridesmaids, Miss Roberta Porte, of Washington, D. C., Miss Jane Carver of Rosemont, Miss Elizabeth Van Horn and Miss Helen Wilson of Stockton, were attired in light blue net with matching shoulder-length veils and they carried bouquets of daffodils and baby iris.

Robert Gilliland of Lucas, close friend of the bridegroom, served as best man. The ushers were Leon Statler and Lester Higgins of Stockton.

Mrs. Wilson appeared at her daughter's wedding in a floor-length gown of rose lace and rose accessories. The groom's mother was attired in a medium blue floor-length gown with navy accessories. Both wore shoulder corsages of Talisman rose buds.

Following the ceremony at the church a reception was held at the Wilson home in Stockton for about 80 guests. Centered in the decorations on the table at which the bridal party was seated was a three-tier wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom.

The bride, who is a popular social leader among Stockton's young people, is a graduate of Lambertsville high school and of Reider college in New Jersey. Later she attended Ashland college where she was prominent in numerous collegiate activities and was elected to serve as the 1941 May Queen.

Following his graduation from Lucas high school the groom attended Ashland college where he was prominent in academic, athletic and musical activities, and was elected a member of the Phi Sigma Chi national fraternity. He was graduated from Ashland last year with the A. B. degree. He is now awaiting assignment as a cadet in the United States Army Air corps.

Immediately after the wedding reception Mr. and Mrs. Swain left on a wedding trip which included various points in Pennsylvania and Ohio. They arrived yesterday for a visit with relatives in Lucas and Mansfield.

For traveling Mrs. Swain wore a powder blue suit with navy accessories and a white orchid as a shoulder corsage.

Among out-of-town guests at the wedding which included relatives and friends from Washington, D. C., New York City and Brooklyn, Plainsfield and nearby Trenton were Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Swain and son, Bud of Lucas, parents and brother of the bridegroom, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Swain, of Mansfield, grandparents of the bridegroom. Robert, Tobias, also of Mansfield, and Robert Gilliland of Lucas.

Plan for Long-Range Living

(INS Illustrated News Writer.
By SUSAN BARDEN

Long-range clothes for long-range living was the theme of a recent fashion show.

The collection was designed by two designers of a Fifth Avenue store.

Long-range wear was a potential of every costume shown, because they were designed to fit into our lives from this moment on through spring. In addition, their style elements were prophetic enough to keep them chic and new-looking for many months to come.

Some of the new trends shown were plastic seaming, sequinned prints, tissue paper blue and a completely new silhouette line featuring the bustle front.

The bustle front consists of gathered front fullness stiffened by cording, ruching or beading so that the skirt juts out sharply five inches below the waistline. Several of the dresses had a distinctly heightened waistline in front, so that the bustle effect came slighly above the hipbone.

Strong, Clear Colors For Daytime.

Although the designers recognized the upsurging predominance of black and white and navy and white as spring color schemes, they retained many strong, clear, colors for daytime. A new note was the use of bright-colored coats over dark print dresses. An excellent example of this is shown in one of the above photographs.

The outfit consists of fitted, street length bright vermillion red coat and a basic dress made of pure silk. The print is made up of white and red suitcases drawn on a black background. The dress has softness over the bust and a square neck.

Plastic seaming is featured in the other daytime frock. It is made of pure silk with a long fitted bodice which fastens down the front with self buttons. The skirt is easy and graceful with fullness in the front. The print is navy and red.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

For answer Professor Diswell's servant only nodded. Then he held out his hands to Gus, who stood nearest him.

"Please rub—" he croaked, and Gus put him into a chair and began to chafe his wrists.

"Bill," Gus commanded, "take his ankles." And Bill began to rub the younger man's ankles, while Jim Watson and I ministered to Professor Diswell as tenderly and speedily as we could.

"Okay, Bill!" Gus said after a minute, "better take these ropes out and help Joe tie that lad up."

Gus Explains Delay.

"We'll fix the—" Bill growled, "the way we did the other one," and Gus, looking at me, explained briefly.

"The reason we was so long was because of the fight that lad outside put up," he said.

"We must make time now," I reiterated. "Get him to the car as quickly as you can, Bill."

"He'll be out of here before you can count to a hundred," Bill said, not boastfully, but as one who knows his own capabilities, and I turned my attention to Professor Diswell again. The old man was trying to talk, and finally succeded in saying "My house! They will wreck it"

"No, they won't," I said with a lucky inspiration, and stepping to the door I spoke to Bill.

"Keep his hands free for another minute," I said. "He's going to write something to leave here hanging to the light bulb."

I took a sheet of paper and a pencil from my bag, and laid it on the table.

"You will write as I dictate," I said. "Fortunately, your right hand is uninjured, and if you refuse to write, I know one of these gentlemen will be delighted to cripple your other hand for you."

"Just tell us when Mrs Graham," Bill growled, and pushed the man into the chair. I put the pencil into his hand and began to speak slowly.

"Men got away," I dictated. "Can get them back, but it will take an hour or two. Wait for us here but do not disturb anything."

"What shall I sign it?" the man asked when he had finished, and I saw a gleam of cunning in his eyes, knew that he was planning some signal to the men who were coming.

With a swift movement I snatched the paper from beneath his hand.

"You do not need to sign it," I said. "The men will recognize your handwriting. "Get him down to the car, Bill, and then"—I hesitated — "better drive both cars up past the entrance here, so that they will be facing the way we came. We'll go back that way, so there won't be any chance of our meeting the other car.

"That's a good idea, Mrs Graham," Jim Watson said approvingly from the door behind me. "And Professor Diswell is tickled pink about the way you've fixed things."

The man who was the old professor's servant came out into the room and spoke in hoarse, guttural fashion. Evidently his tongue was badly swollen.

"I know what to get together and take," he said. "We've had our bags packed for several days, expecting we might have to get out in a hurry. Now, if you don't mind bringing your men out of that other room, there's something there the old man wants me to get, and he doesn't want anybody to see where it's hidden."

The man who was being led out of the door gave a snarling sound as he heard the words, and Professor Diswell's man—he did not sound like a servant — gave a short laugh.

"Yes, it was under your hand all the time," he said

"Hurry" I urged. "We must leave here immediately. Take a blanket and some towels for Professor Diswell. I must telephone while you're getting ready to leave. Mr. Watson, can you give me the nearest number where I can get hold of the state troopers?"

Parents Can Help Child Who Stutters

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

THE CHILD under five or six who stutters can, as a rule, best be cured of stuttering, if he is not aware that any one is trying to cure him. His parents should work on themselves to gain more personal poise and family serenity and provide a less strained, less exciting program for the child.

During the past two years, I have received nearly two score letters from parents who have written me that after following my advice to them for several weeks or months, the young child had ceased stuttering. This advice I have made into a bulletin which any one may have without cost, by writing me at 235 East 45th street, New York City, enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it.

Home-Cured at Ten

I personally checked on one of the cases. He had been home-cured at the age of ten and I saw him five years later. He did not stutter once during an hour of conversation in which he participated freely. A certain other lad I know cured himself, with the aid of his understanding and helpful family, when he was 16. His parents and older sister worked chiefly on themselves aiming to help the lad always to feel worth while and at ease in their presence, especially when he talked.

I don't claim to be a speech expert, but as a psychologist, I do know something about emotions and means of modifying and controlling them. I assume that, with few exceptions, uncomfortable emotions are at the root of stuttering, especially self-consciousness. On this assumption, whatever help I can offer the stutterer is chiefly by way of showing his parents, teachers and close associates how to build up in the stutterer, more self-regard, self-confidence and feeling of well-being. Indeed, the most successful speech experts I know are putting emphasis in this direction, too.

As you can see, the older the stutterer the harder it is to help him in these directions. Help certainly does not come directly, as a rule, by talking to him about his problem.

Need of Supervision

Relatively few parents are able to work on the problem from a psychological point of view, without rather close supervision and guidance. For this reason, many parents of the stutterer should go regularly to consult with a speech expert, rather than to try to follow written advice.

Of course, there are good speech clinics; also some good schools for stutterers However, most such schools make extravagant claims. Many a person leaving the school as cured, is as bad a stutterer as ever soon after returning to his old environment, which is the chief source of the disturbing emotions.

Until his basic emotions are modified and the attitude and behavior of those persons who have been most responsible for his hampering emotions changed, there can be no permanent cure. Yet I believe there is considerable hope for the stutterer at any age, if enough persons understand him and act toward him as they should.

I discuss these matters further in my booklet, "Learning to Be Likable," and in my book, "Building Personality in Children."

HOROSCOPE

For Saturday, April 11

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

THE LUNAR as well as mutual aspects for this day, although they point to much stir and activity and probably excitement, with surring events and definite accomplishment on new projects or meritorious propositions, yet may foretell some sudden and surprising difficulty or upset in plans, which seem to be tenacious, deepseated and difficult to manipulate. This might be the stubborn malice or surprising effort of a designing relative or the unlooked-for opposition of strange persons or powers.

Those whose birthday it is may look for an unusually active and enterprising year, which may result in achievement on new and important projects, despite the sudden assaults of either strangers, elders or the stubborn antagonism of a malevolent relative

A child born on this day should have much energy, aggressiveness and determination to win out against opposition

"The Authority on Authorities"

SAVE HIS GUESSING

Whenever you can play your own cards so as to prevent your partner from having to guess in his own play, it is your duty to do so. When starting a high-low signal on the first trick causes him to repeat the suit, even in a case where your side makes no positive gain thereby, you at least keep him from making a shift which may present a trick to the declarer. Unless you are pretty sure that he will make a shift which will not harm your side, you must guide him away from trouble

	♠ 7 6 5 4 ♥ K 5 ♦ Q J 4 ♣ 7 6 5 4
♠ Q 8 2 ♥ 2 ♦ A K 10 7 5 3 ♣ Q 10 3	W. N. E. S.	♠ 10 9 3 ♥ J 9 8 6 3 ♦ 8 2 ♣ A K 9

(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable)

2 ♥	Pass	Pass	Dbl

On the diamond K lead, East played his 2. A momentary glance, showing him the Q in dummy, had caused him to decide not to encourage repeat of the suit, whereas it should have done quite the contrary, if anything, to get that honor knocked off by a small trump before it could be of use. late in the hand, but more importantly to keep West from guessing about which black suit he should shift to.

West decided that card was not a singleton, but probably from a trebleton, so shifted to the spade 2. The J therefore gained a gratuitous trick. When South led the diamond 9 to the A and East followed suit, West saw he should lead a third one to the Q. Flabbergasted by his own bad play to the opener, which already had cost him a trick, East now made another mistake, ruffing the Q with the heart 3, so that South could over-ruff with the 4. The heart K finessed heart 10, heart A and Q and the two spade tops made a total of eight tricks for South, giving him his doubled contract

If East had used the diamond 8 on the first trick, West would next have taken the K and led the 7 to the Q. A ruff of that by the 8 would have forced the 10, assuring East a trump trick. Together with a spade trick and five in the minors, this would have made a total of seven and set the contract two tricks.

Tomorrow's Problem.

After winning the third club lead, how should West plan to make 3-No Trumps on this deal if South had overcalled with 2-Clubs during the auction and North finally had doubled the contract?

HOW DOES THE STEINWAY DO IT?

Almost every major improvement in the modern piano has been a Steinway invention. Accelerated Action is the most recent. Dr. E. L. Free, authority on acoustics, reports: Steinway Accelerated Action insures greater speed, greater precision of touch. Keys respond sharply. The rebound is quicker, smoother. Less effort is required. All playing is easier. Accelerated Action is found in the Steinway only. The Steinway's slight difference in cost will be forgotten quickly, but the piano so superbly built will remain a constant source of enjoyment.

I TELL MY AUDIENCES HOW NEW "ANTI-SNEEZE" RINSO GETS DIRTIEST CLOTHES EXTRA-WHITE AND BRIGHT. AND HOW IT STOPS WASHDAY SNEEZING SPELLS

says Mrs. Emily M. Lautz noted home-making lecturer

"I TELL my audiences that because the average wash usually contains extra-dirty clothes they really need Rinso's rich, lively suds to get them sparkling clean. I show them how snowy white and bright clothes come from a Rinso soaking. And I explain that Rinso does the weekly wash without harsh scrubbing or boiling—just a little finger rubbing of stubborn spots. Women are delighted to learn that Rinso is 98% free of sneezy soap-dust. And, of course, I urge them to use New 'Anti-Sneeze' Rinso for everything—for quicker dishwashing, for silver, glassware and woodwork."

CHAPTER XIX

Drake picked up his hat. "You'd better let me walk part of the way with you anyhow, Cassie."

"Thank you, Drake. No. Good night."

And before either of them could say another word she had gone. They heard her running again, going back the same way she had come.

* * *

Parris stood in the middle of the room, unable to think or to move. He looked up, a little fearful that Drake would laugh. Whatever might be the matter, he knew that Cassie was in earnest, and that she was horribly frightened about something.

"Drake, do you suppose Dr. Tower found out I've been seeing her?"

"I don't know."

"I can't leave her there alone to take it by herself—whatever has happened."

"I believe she just got to thinking about you going away and just kind of went off her base for a minute. Gee, she's all gone on you, ain't she?"

"It might have been just a—a kind of hysterical outbreak."

"Says Dr Mitchell!"

"You don't think I ought to try and find out some way about Cassie? For half a cent, I'd just go in to see Dr. Tower and—"

"And get yourself licked all the way to the front gate?"

"Well, what is the matter with him, anyway? Cassie's a girl like anybody else."

"Yes, but you know as well as I do that Dr. Tower is a man like nobody else! Ain't he kept her in as strict as if—like she was a prisoner? I don't know what's the matter with people like that. But you know darn well ain't anything about the Towers been like anybody else."

When Parris waked, Drake was standing beside the bed with a breakfast tray.

"Better eat this, kid."

Drake's manner was so grave that Parris looked up in surprise.

"Are you all right, Drake? Anything the matter?"

Parris threw back the covers and swung his feet out of bed "See here, Drake, you can't fool me. Something's the matter with you."

"Cassie's dead, Parris."

Parris opened his mouth but he couldn't make a sound.

"Her father killed her — and committed suicide"

"Good God, Drake! It must have been because — it was my fault."

"Don't even think that, Parris." Drake shook him. "Now, you listen to me You keep your mouth shut. Tight, do you hear?"

Parris tried to pull away

"Listen to me, Parris. You can ruin everything if you don't watch out. It's not your fault. He must have been crazy"

"How—"

"She was dead in bed from some kind of poison—they don't know yet what it was. Must have been something quick."

"Drake—I've got to go and find out—"

"Oh, no you don't! You stay right here, and I'll go. But—damn it, kid, don't you see you might get mixed up in this some way?"

"Mixed—up—in—it?"

"Well, you're the only person ever went there. You have been seeing Cassie, haven't you? And she was here in this house, last night!"

"Well, we've got to tell them. I—"

"I swear, I'll knock your head loose if you don't do what I tell you. Listen—just as a favor to me, let me go downtown, and I'll come right back. If everything looks all right, you can go out yourself. I just don't want you to get talked about unnecessarily. That's all. Now, will you promise me?"

"Yes."

Drake didn't come back until noon. He looked hot and tired.

Parris met him at the door.

"Drake—quick!"

"It's all right, kid, as far as you're concerned."

"That's not the question. I mean, did you find out why he killed her?"

"No. His letter—he left a letter on his study table—didn't tell any reason at all. He just explained that he had killed his daughter and was going to kill himself. The rest was just directions that he and Cassie were to be buried here in King's Row."

"Is that all?"

"There was a letter addressed to the bank, and to Colonel Skeffington—a kind of will."

"Then he did have kinfolks somewhere?"

"No He left everything he had to you."

"You're crazy!"

"No, I'm not. But I'm damn sure Dr Tower must have been."

"Left it to me! Why? What for?"

"No explanation at all. Colonel Skeffington asked all sorts of questions. Wondered if you had any inkling of this But you see it excuses you, all right, from any responsibility in Cassie's death If that had been what he killed her for, he wouldn't have left you his property."

Parris beat on the table with his fists. "I don't care about that! I don't care about that! It's Cassie! Cassie . . . too! What did she do?" He leaned forward and bent his head on his clenched hands. He began to cry, uncontrollably, making small, incoherent sounds.

"You stay out of it. Somebody'll begin to ask you questions, and just like I said, you haven't got any more sense than to tell everything you know."

Parris looked a little blank. "Everything I know?"

"You know that Cassie came running here last night like something was after her, and wanted you to marry her."

"Well—"

"Can't you imagine what Kings Row would make out of that! Think a little, you numbskull! This town's been talking about the Towers ever since I can remember anything, wondering about 'em, and the like."

The narrow circle of questions began its grinding revolutions again. Why? What? Why?

Why did Cassie come last night?

What was she afraid of?

What reason could her father have had for killing her?

What reason could he have had for killing himself?

Why didn't Cassie explain things last night?

Why didn't Dr. Tower leave a letter for him since he was leaving him his property?

Why—and why, why hadn't he ever come right out and asked Cassie about herself?

He couldn't go on always not knowing what lay in the past.

Parris sat rigid, and Drake waited. Drake's lips quivered ever so little as he watched. Parris' face had altered during these hours. That soft-complexioned look he had always had was gone.

Parris and Drake returned from the double funeral late the next afternoon. It had been more of an ordeal than either of them had anticipated. There was a curious crowd that packed the dim, shabby house Everyone watched Parris. He had gone a little faint when they seated him near the coffins. A sheaf of flowers hid Cassie's face from him, but he could see her hands. He felt that never again would he be able to forget the terrible, unnatural immobility of those wax-like interlaced fingers.

Whatever the mystery might be that lay back of this dark and terrible happening, he felt that Dr. Tower and Cassie belonged to him, and to him alone. For Dr Tower there was a loyalty—the devotion of a disciple for a brilliant and able master. He owed this man a gratitude that he could not even communicate

His grandmother, Dr Tower Cassie—to lose three people who were a real part of your life, all in one week Parris felt old, spent. He was thankful for Drake's friendly assurance in the days that followed.

There was a conference with Colonel Skeffington and Patterson Lawes in the same dingy room at the bank where he had settled his grandmother's affairs. They would dispose of the Tower property for him, although perhaps he would like to keep the library.

With the thin strength of the numbed Parris forced himself to return to Dr. Tower's study for his notebooks and the letters from Vienna about his schooling. That night he was about to pack the composition books away when he noticed one, thicker than the others, closely written in Dr. Tower's small, difficult handwriting.

Parris stared at it for a moment. He wondered if he had a right to read it. It was clearly a sort of confidential record. Certainly, Parris thought, he, more than anyone else, had a right to know what led up to the tragic outcome of that mysterious night.

He turned the lamp up a little. Drake had gone to bed. Then he began to read. . . .

He grew heavier of heart as the pages turned. This was another man than the one who sat and taught him clearly and methodically. This was the same brain, but functioning in an altogether different and frightening manner. It was the brain of a brilliant mad man—a man who killed his wife when her mind snapped, who killed his daughter because her mental unbalance was growing worse with the years; who took his own life because he knew that he was coldly, clearly insane.

An arrogant and intrepid intelligence flared through the pages, sometimes wandering, sometimes driven willfully, along dangerous ways. The Gordons, there had been no doubt for Dr. Tower, were to blame because he was refused a post at the asylum From then on he had fed on the bitterness of his own solitude, consoled himself with the assurances of his own superiority, and noted with icy detachment that his own abnormalcy flowered in Cassandra

Parris shuddered. Kings Row, he felt vaguely—narrow, spiteful, gossipy, inbred Kings Row—had killed them both, or was at least as much to blame as the hand of Dr. Tower. Somewhere else—in a city—some place where his mind would have been appreciated, his genius welcomed, and his strangeness overlooked for the sake of both, surely Dr. Tower would have found.

And Cassie! There might have been a normal girlhood for her in a kinder environment. Here, locked away from everyone—from would-be friends as well as jealous, gossipy Gordons—what chance had she been given for rationality?

He closed the notebook and passed his hand over his eyes in the old gesture.

Parris wakened Drake. "I had to tell you," he said. "Now I've got to destroy this."

"We'll burn it in the kitchen stove."

* * *

Parris and Drake stood on the little station platform. They felt stiff and awkward.

A girl came through the station door and stood looking about. She was very pretty and in a husky, forthright fashion. She saw Drake and her gray-blue eyes smiled.

"Hello!"

Drake turned. "Why, Randy Monaghan!"

"You going away?"

"Parris is going to Europe."

"Sure enough! Going to stay long?"

"Four years—maybe five."

Drake was looking very steadily at Randy. A slow warmth of color rose under her deep tan. Drake took her by the arm. "Gee, Randy, I bet you're the prettiest girl in the world!"

She laughed—a not very good attempt at her old rough and ready manner. Her color deepened.

"Here she comes!"

There was a bustle and a quite unnecessary hurry about the place as the train of two coaches clanked to a standstill. The passengers climbed the steep little steps, the few trunks were thumped into the baggage compartment of the forward coach, and the wheezy conductor called, "All aboard."

Parris stood on the rear platform and looked back through the thick smudge of acrid train smoke as the station slowly receded. He felt a blinding terror at this moment.

Drake gave a deep sigh.

"I hate to see that boy going away. He's the best friend I got."

"He's a nice boy, isn't he?"

"The very best. Well—there he goes. Four years! Gosh!" He turned, and his stiffened features achieved something of his old faunlike grin. "Say—my buggy's down here. How about coming for a ride?"

"All right," she said, "let's."

GEN. JOHNSON: Plans Conservancy District Air Patrol

GEN. JOHNSON:

By GEN. HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON—Just a month ago today the reorganization of the war department was made effective. It was a wise move for the war department to clean its own house and streamline peacetime procedures for war emergency

Today the three branches are functioning efficiently, but the outstanding job, and the most difficult job in the whole picture was that given to Lieut. General Brehon Somervell, the commanding general of the services of supply.

Gen. Johnson.

I know what that job entails. I tried to do something along that line in the first World war, but Somervell, in the short period of a month has gone much farther than we were able to do, or were permitted to do.

He has quietly, efficiently, and effectively gone about the job of tying in and combining related functions, eliminating red tape and time-consuming procedures, cleaning his house of dead wood, and at the same time keeping the wheels going. That is an accomplishment.

It is true that there is still much for him to do, but the American people can rest assured that he will do the job.

More and more of the old diehard, tradition-bound, regular army brass hats have been inspired by the vigorous and precedent-breaking leadership of Somervell.

Somervell's first order was to drop the word "defense" and use the word "war." Other federal agencies could follow that same directive.

His second order, which was most important, was to delegate to the lower echelons the authority for direct action, thereby eliminating routine channels. The necessity for this action can be recognized by anyone who has had experience in Washington.

Not satisfied with the routine reports he was receiving from the field, he selected a team of qualified, brilliant young officers and sent them into one of the largest industrial areas to get first hand facts on how his organization could help and further the efforts of those producing war equipment.

This is the first example, and it is an encouraging one, of the application of the principles of modern field generalship to the problems of war supply. All the civilian experts and leaders in the United States could not give that type of direction to the supply problems of a modern army.

I know Bill Somervell. I have watched him closely through his career in the army; later when he started the task of building the Florida canal and did what other engineers though impossible; and when he followed me in New York City in the WPA.

No boondoggling projects were slipped over on Somervell in that latter job, and no one is going to slip anything over on him in doing his job as long as he has the authority and responsibility to do it.

This column is just to give you another example of what I meant in one of my previous columns when I said that there are lots of officers in the army of the MacArthur caliber, who when given the opportunity, will deliver the goods.

You can rest assured that Somervell will give them the opportunity because he cannot stand a man who does not deliver. He delegates authority, but demands action.

The country should realize that in Somervell they have the keystone of the bridge that will carry troops and supplies to the attack.

DIES ON EVE OF SENTENCING IN CEMETERY CASE

Marion Man Succumbs Leaving 32 to Face Judge Today In Mail Fraud.

(By United Press)

COLUMBUS — The death of Robert Marshall, 63, of Marion, reduced to 32 the number of men to be sentenced today by Federal Judge Robert R Nevin for using the mails to defraud and conspiracy in connection with sales promotion of cemetery lots.

Marshall, former vice president and general manager of Forest Glenn, Inc, died of a long-standing heart ailment yesterday, less than 18 hours before he would have been sentenced.

He will be buried in Forest Glenn Memorial park, Marion, one of three cemeteries developed by the organization of which government attorneys said he was "the brains, the number one man."

The men were convicted by a federal jury Tuesday night after a trial that lasted more than six months.

Marshall was the second defendant to die during the trial that began Sept. 23 and fifth of 44 men who died after their indictment Nov. 28, 1940. The others were L Don Jones, former mayor of Marion, who died during the trial, R. E Sanborn, Cleveland; O. C. Young, Granville, and L. M. Stump, Columbus.

Early in the trial, Lt. Gov. Paul M. Herbert, Marshall's attorney, introduced two physicians who testified that Marshall suffered a heart ailment which gave him "somewhat limited chances" of surviving the trial. Judge Nevin had overruled a request that Marshall be excused from the trial.

Marshall had been confined to his bed a week and was not in court when the jury gave a verdict.

Forest Glen, Inc., was organized to sell investment shares in three cemeteries, Forest Glen Memorial park, Marion; Glen Haven, Springfield, and Glen Rest, Columbus.

The government contended that investors of $1,854,000 were promised a 70 per cent return but that only $800,000 was repaid as profit and interest. The government charged that only $344,000 was received from sales of lots for burial from 1934 to 1938.

Probably the smallest "key to the city" ever presented to a visiting celebrity will be presented to Colleen Moore, former actress of stage and screen, when she arrives here Saturday night for a personal appearance in connection with her famous Doll House Monday night. Sam V. Fox, commander of Earl McVey Post of the American Legion which is sponsoring the exhibition, will give the key to Miss Moore when she arrives at the Pennsylvania station on The Trail Blazer due at 7:25 p. m. The key and the miniature American Legion emblem to which it is attached were both made at the Fox Jewelry store.

The belief that boys and girls must be busy to stay out of mischief didn't hold up this week in Mansfield. With the city's schools closed for the spring vacation, Ralph Carroll, county juvenile officer, said he had handled fewer complaints than at any time in recent months. It was pointed out that the bad weather may have kept more of the youngsters inside and many of them probably found jobs during vacation week.

BOARD VOTES $10,000 FOR FIRE CONTROL

Responds to Delegation's Plea at Withdrawal of CCC and NYA Camps.

(By International News Service)

COLUMBUS—The state emergency board today had voted $10,000 to establish an air patrol and other forest protection in the Muskingum conservancy district because fire control service formerly supplied by 1,200 CCC and NYA boys had been withdrawn by the federal government.

The sum is $1,660 under the amount asked by the district and a delegation of legislators, sportsmen and conservationists who said 2,000,000 trees to be planted this year would be endangered if more protection is not forthcoming.

Tudor Wilson, Columbus insurance man and representative of the League of Ohio Sportsmen, told the board in asking for the money:

"The conservancy district itself is planting 700,000 trees this year, private land owners are planting 1,300,000 and the ultimate goal is 20,000,000 These plantings and those that have gone before must be protected from the extreme fire hazard that has developed by growth of highly inflammable broom sedge on abandoned farms."

He asserted in answer to questions by Assistant Attorney General Dale Dunifon that the emergency is actually dire because the whole planting program of the last two years has been developed on the basis of NYA and CCC help.

Now, he pointed out, five NYA camps and seven CCC camps are being withdrawn and closed down by the national government because of the defense program.

B. C. Browning, New Philadelphia, secretary-treasurer of the district, told the board that fire protection without the planes would be impossible because there are not sufficient watch towers, warden and patrolmen to cover the district's 65,000 acres of land in 18 counties

O. A. Alderman, Columbus, state forester, said the planes would handle the work by communicating with 14 already established ground stations now linked by short wave radio. These stations will then be able to send fire workers to any danger area at once and without mistake, he said.

When board members wanted to know whether the money would be used only to rent two planes for patrol work, Charles Spencer, member of the conservancy district board, explained that it would not. Some of it, he said, would be used to buy 500 fire rakes, 100 knapsack pumps, to pay postage, buy miscellaneous supplies and four radios of the two-way type.

BROADWAY

—By Dorothy Kilgallen

Backstage In Manhattan.

(No. 1—Grand Hotel)

GLAMOR, like gold or fame or talent, is where you find it. It shimmers under the surface of the commonplace and unless you have an eye for a plot or a character or a Cinderella story, you are apt not to see a Saroyan saga in a doorman, a Faith Baldwin novelette in the blue eyes of the girl who checks your hat.

Kilgallen

But glamor and the excitement of a fiction story often exist far from Gertie Lawrence's dressing room or the set of a Marlene Dietrich picture. The cop on the beat becomes Phil Regan in the movies, the elevator operator in the department store becomes Dorothy Lamour, the school teacher emerges as Madeleine Carroll. Glamor is more often than not elusive to the casual eye of the city and the hurrying glances of those who dwell in it.

So it is with the huge, complex steel and stone personality of a hotel. Viki Baum made the Grand Hotel glamorous and Ludwig Bemelmans did the same for his Hotel Splendide, and both these authors found their glamor not in the obvious exterior elements of the hotels, but behind the scenes As any reporter will tell you, there's usually a better story "backstairs" in a hotel than there is in the royal suite.

Doubt it? Stroll through the portals of a New York hostelry as large and quietly bustling as the Hotel Pierre, and meet Nina, a pretty, dark-haired girl who is one of the corps of hat checkers at the Cotillion Room. Early last fall, Nina was a guest in the house of a man whose exploits not long afterwards thrilled the whole world—General Douglas MacArthur. She was a dancer in the Manila hotel, where MacArthur resided in an air-conditioned penthouse. Mrs. MacArthur, a lovely, friendly woman with the Southerner's gift for hospitality, invited her and a group of other Americans in for tea, and Nina met the General. How many movie stars can match that experience?

Nina's story has some of the quality of a musical comedy libretto. . . . In 1934, following a career as a specialty dancer for Ziegfeld, she became a member of an American show company touring the Orient. The show was, in Nina's own words, "a terrible turkey," and was left stranded by its producer in Shanghai. The American consul provided passage home for everyone in the troupe — except Nina, who insisted on remaining She became a big star in Shanghai and received more money for her performance than any other entertainer in that bizarre and polyglot city.

One day on the Shanghai Bund she met a young fellow from Brooklyn, a lad who also was touring the Orient with an American company. Nina advised him to return to the United States and try to get into a Broadway show, because somehow she had the feeling he could become one of the greatest stars in show business

Nina's prophecy probably had nothing to do with the fact that the young man eventually did return to America and did star in a Broadway show.

His name? Danny Kaye.

The handsome young fellow who opens doors and whistles for taxicabs at the Cafe Pierre is worth listening to, if you're not in a hurry. His name is Herb Walters, and he's an actor, really. He was in "The American Way" and the stock companies of "Fledgling," and he's worked as director for little theater groups throughout the country. He's a playwright, too. Some day Broadway may think of him as glamorous. . . .

Chatter Corner

Dr. and Mrs. E. A. Smedal having lunch at their favorite restaurant. . . . Mrs. W. D. Spurgeon, bride of Tuesday, hurrying up North Walnut street. (She's the former LaDonna SaVerne, employed at Bates') . . . Esther Dunham lunching at a downtown restaurant.

Cronies of Bob Gordon getting together at a drug store to write notes to the Mansfielder who was recently inducted into the army. They sent him a carton of cigarets. . . . Mrs. Frank Maxwell hurrying to the Community Fund office for campaign supplies for her workers' division.

Beatrice Brewer creating fun at her advanced first aid class when she lost her balance while applying artificial respiration and fell over the victim. . . . Joe Dune painting rods for engineering work with the street department. . . . BAY WATERS GO ON A RAMPAGE

Break Retaining Wall, Damage Homes Near Toledo.

TOLEDO —(U.P.)— Householders in the suburban Point Place district on Maumee bay just north of Toledo today surveyed several thousand dollars damage to property by wind-blown waves which flooded the residential section.

Several families abandoned their homes. Police and volunteers stood by to help as wind, rain and waves lashed the area last night in the worst storm since 1930.

Waves 15 to 18 feet high broke through a retaining wall at Howard farms. One man was rowed to safety. Deputy sheriffs tried to bridge gaps in the waterfront safeguards with 200 bags of sand.

NAB CHURCHMEN

Bishop, Three Others Seized In Norway Church Revolt.

STOCKHOLM — (INS) — Bishop Berggrav of Oslo and three other Norwegian clergymen were arrested today as an aftermath of the church rebellion against the Quisling regime in Norway, according to reports received in Stockholm.

The four men were lodged in a concentration camp near Oslo. They were the first churchmen arrested by Quisling. Bishop Berggrav was known as a "symbol" of the Norwegian church's resistance to puppet Premier Major Vidkun Quisling and German domination.

He and the three other clergymen were accused of being the authors of a declaration read from all pulpits in Norway affirming the determination of all to "obey God instead of Quisling. Immediately afterward, all priests and clergymen of the Norwegian church resigned from office.

THOUSANDS OF ITEMS NEEDED

Civilian Defense Starts Its Collection of Medical Supplies Monday.

Mansfielders will be called upon next week to supply thousands of items in the way of army cots, sheets and pillow cases, cotton blankets and all kinds of other articles ranging from oil stoves to flashlights to equip the city's casualty stations and as many mobile units for war time emergency service.

The Civilian Defense Medical Division, conducting the drive, estimated that at least 1200 major items aside from 10,000 surgical dressings, and thousands of other small items such as soap, nail brushes, matches, safety razors and blades will be needed to adequately prepare these stations to give emergency relief.

Not all emergency items are expected to be donated outright from home supplies on hand. Some of them will merely be loaned for the duration while others will be purchased from cash gifts contributed by those having no excess articles to spare.

All material contributions are to be taken to the John Simpson Junior High school which will serve as a temporary receiving station each day next week from Monday through Saturday. Members of the Red Cross Staff Assistance corps and volunteer production workers in the surgical dressings department will be on duty from 9 a. m. until 12 noon, and again from 1 p. m. to 4 p m., to receive donations.

Bernard C. Hardy, chairman of the ways and means committee heading arrangements, requests that donors deliver their own packages whenever possible. The Volunteers of America will make collections of bulky donations.

COLLEEN MOORE TO ARRIVE FOR DOLL HOUSE EXHIBIT TOMORROW

The shining towers and battlements of a miniature castle that cost a half-million dollars to build and furnish will take form in Mansfield Monday when Colleen Moore's Doll House opens a week's exhibition under the sponsorship of McVey Post of the American Legion.

Plans were furthered for the showing last night when Miss Mary Jane Burns, secretary to Miss Moore, arrived from Canton to confer with Sam Fox, commander, and other members of the post and ticket committee regarding the exhibition.

Miss Moore, herself, will reach Mansfield Saturday night from Chicago, to make a personal appearance at the opening, Monday night, when a Sponsors' party has been arranged in honor of the former star of stage and screen. She will autograph souvenir programs and also be a guest at the open house at the Legion home.

Fox today suggested that Mansfielders give Miss Moore a warm reception when she arrives here Saturday. Her train, the Trail Blazer, is due at the Pennsylvania station at 7:25 p m

The costly miniature that took nine years to assemble and build will arrive in the city Sunday, via railway express, and will be erected Monday in the R B Gardner show rooms at 116 Park avenue west, by a specialist who travels with the exhibit and superintends its installation.

Weighing 6,000 pounds the castle, 14 feet high with a nine-foot front and a similar depth, is composed of 200 individual pieces of aluminum, copper and bronze. Each piece is separately packed for traveling and none of them have ever been broken or lost.

A special volunteer guard of Legionnaires will be on duty night and day while the exhibition is shown. Receipts from the display will be divided equally between the Red Cross and Soldiers-Citizens' committee which provides fitting farewells for Richland county men entering the service.

Miss Moore, in private life is Mrs. Homer Hargrave, the wife of a Chicago broker, and the mother of two young children. Since leaving the screen she has devoted her time to her home and family and to the circulation of her Doll House that is dedicated to the crippled children of America and has contributed thousands of dollars in their behalf. She will be the guest of the Louis Bromfields at Malabar Farm, while in Richland county.

REVENUE HIGHER

County Gets $93,507 Instead of $44,500 From Tag Fund.

Richland county's road and bridge department had $93,507 in auto license and gas tax funds today to help finance spring repair work instead of the $44,500 that was in sight yesterday.

After announcing in a pre-allocation report that the county would get $44,500 in the first 1942 distribution of auto license fees, C. W. Wallace, state motor vehicle registrar, reshuffled the money and gave Richland county $581,507 To that amount was added $12,000 in gasoline tax money.

The city of Mansfield will receive only $20,775 and Shelby $3,350, however, instead of $83,100 and $13,000 respectively, as announced yesterday County villages also will receive less than the preliminary report indicated.

THEATERS

Cowboy Comedy.

Hailed as the most elaborate of the Abbott and Costello starring comedies, "Ride 'Em Cowboy," the new vehicle of the two zanies opens at the Ohio Saturday with a star cast including Ella Fitzgerald, the queen of swing. Backgrounded against an Arizona dude ranch the picture presents plenty of bucking broncbos, Indian rodeo aces and feminine pulchritude. Abbott and Costello play Long Island hot dog venders who find themselves stowaways in a cattle car en route to Arizona. Anne Gwynne, Dick Foran and Johnny Mack Brown provide the romantic interest.

Chicago Satire.

The roaring days of Chicago when a pretty woman could do no wrong and Roxie Hart was a legend are depicted in Ginger Rogers' new picture, "Roxie Hart," opening Saturday at the Madison. A comical satire on the Chicago of 15 years ago the picture introduces Ginger as a flamboyant creature ready to confess to a murder which she didn't commit if it will get her a good vaudeville contract. George Montgomery, Adolphe Menjou, Lynne Overman and Nigel Bruce are in the cast. "Canal Zone" with Chester Morris and Harriet Hilliard is the second attraction.

"Rise and Shine," with Jack Oakie, George Murphy and Linda Darnell," is showing at the Ritz. William Boyd is starred in the Hopalong Cassidy feature "Outlaws of the Desert."

Mystery Romance.

Joan Fontaine, who won the Academy award with her portrayal of the heiress wife in "Suspicion," is the top attraction at the Park starting Saturday. The picture co-stars Cary Grant with Miss Fontaine in the role of a charming adventurer, who marries a country heiress with the expectations of permitting her money to cover his lack of funds. An English countryside furnishes the locale of the drama which has Sir Cedric Hardwicke, Nigel Bruce and Dame May Whitty in the leading roles. "Yokel Boy," a farcial picture with Eddie Foy, jr., is the co-feature.

Musical Production.

Don Ameche and Alice Faye appear in "Sing Baby Sing," one of their early musicals, showing at the Majestic. Adolphe Menjou and the Ritz brothers are in the cast. "Unseen Enemy," the second picture, has Irene Hervey, Leo Carillo and Andy Devine.

LIBRARY GETS NEW VOLUME ON GEN. M'ARTHUR

Authentic Record of Soldier's Life Recounted in Book Just Received.

The thrilling story of the life of General Douglas MacArthur, commander-in-chief of the United Nations' Armed forces in Australia, is recounted by Francis T. Miller in a new book, "General Douglas MacArthur," just received by Mansfield public library.

History is combined with biography to give the inside story of the defense of the Philippines plus an authentic and complete record of the fighting soldier's hectic life in the forefront of American military affairs.

Another dramatic story is told by Alice Crew Gall under the title, "In Peace and War: A Story of Human Service." It traces the development of the Red Cross from the time of its inception in the mind of Henri Dunant well into the second year of the present war.

ACCUSTOMED AS I AM by John Mason Brown is an hilarious report from the lecture front by the well known dramatic critic and one of the most popular lecturers in America. All the pitfalls, perils and adventures that the author has encountered in appearances before a hundred women's clubs are related with a running fire of wit, epigrams and anecdotes. Illustrations are done by Al Hirschfeld.

OLD McDONALD HAD A FARM by Angus McDonald is the true—and extremely readable—story of a forthright, cranky and uncompromising preacher in Oklahoma who bought the most rundown place in the community and turned it into a model farm. How he did it is an epic of country life and, in addition, unlike most realistic accounts, has a happy ending to commend it further.

OTHER NON-FICTION: THE HIGHWAY OF GOD by Sockman; NEW BLUE BOOK OF FAVORITE SONGS, THIS IS THE VICTORY, BROWN AND SHARPE HANDBOOK, CONSTRUCTION AND USE OF AUTOMATIC SCREW-MACHINES by Brown and Sharpe, LENS WORK FOR AMATEURS by Oxford, AIRWAYS, THE HISTORY OF COMMERCIAL AVIATION IN THE U. S. by Smith, MEASURING INSTRUMENTS by Staff, BLUEPRINT READING, CHECKING AND TESTING by Steinike, DEFENSE WILL NOT WIN THE WAR by Kernan.

MICHAEL'S GIRL by Sophie Kerr is the refreshing story of Michael Rodo—Spanish-Irish, illiterate, but with an honest joy in living—and his daughter. From the day that he walked through Elin Bryant's hedge-gate and talked himself into the role of gardener, not only was the misery in the big house alleviated a little—but something of the gayety and simple decency of Michael and his daughter slipped into Elin's heart, and gave her the incentive to fight for her son's security.

KNICKERBOCKER GARDENS: A PURSUIT OF HAPPINESS, by Caleb Bruce is the story of an imaginary but supposedly typical suburban community, inhabited by an assortment of Americans coming from various parts of the country and the world at large, and representative of various classes and conditions. The time covered by this picture of the ways of life in such a town is the decade from 1927 to 1937.

MR. BUNTING IN PEACE AND WAR by Robert Greenwood is the engaging story of a typical middle class Englishman—aging and unheroic, completely plebeian and as solid as roast beef and Yorkshire pudding. A moving novel of England today. OTHER FICTION: UNLESS THE WIND TURNS by Walker; VANISHING GOLD TRUCK by Keeler; BLUE HORIZONS by Cuthrell.

REPORTS TAX DELINQUENCIES AT LOW FIGURE

State Treasurer Reveals Richland County Has Good Record.

With less than $150,000 outstanding in delinquent taxes, Richland county has one of the best tax collection records of any county in Ohio, according to a report released by Tax Commissioner William S. Evatt.

Proving that a delinquent tax collection campaign started about five years ago has produced results, back taxes due on Mansfield and Richland county homes have dropped to figures far below those for many Ohio cities and counties with less population and smaller tax duplicates.

Delinquencies on Mansfield property at the close of 1941 totaled only $82,000. In contrast, Martins Ferry, New Philadelphia, Uhrichsville and other cities with less population than Mansfield had back tax bills of more than $100,000.

Although slightly larger than Mansfield and with a smaller property valuation, Lima had $470,710 outstanding in uncollected taxes last year, more than five times the Mansfield total.

Installment paying of back taxes has helped to reduce Richland county's bill, county officials pointed out, while a number of properties have been sold at public auction in the past five years after the owners refused or failed to pay their taxes.

Figures on delinquent taxes collected during the first half of this year were not available today, but the total collection of current and back taxes was the best in 11 years and it is expected to bring another further reductions in the county's delinquent tax bill.

Champions Crowned Tonight In JAC Boxing Tourney

Sport Podge by REX HESS

Being nothing at all in the way of a race handicapper, I am hardly prepared to give you the winner of the Kentucky Derby at this early date, although they tell me that Alsab is not a bad choice.

But I can give you a very good tip on the winner of this year's Ohio high school track title in case you would care to make a little book on the foot races.

If Springfield doesn't win it, it will be the team that beats Springfield, and you may lay to that.

* * *

The Wildcat met the Wildcat at Newark several days ago, and only one cat ran wild. That was the Springfield variety of ferocious feline.

The score? Springfield 88, Newark 30.

And that right after Newark and Mansfield had battled to a 59-59 deadlock.

* * *

"Newark and Mansfield are just fair track teams," says Tyger Tutor Harry Mehock, "but Springfield must be pretty good at that. They were good enough a year ago."

Springfield just won 11 firsts in 14 events in that Newark meet, and immediately the Clark county Wildcats were installed as overwhelming favorites to successfully defend their Newark Relays championship on April 18.

And Mansfield will have some contestants in the Newark Relays after all. Mehock says a dual meet scheduled for the Tygers on April 18 has been moved up one day, so that he'll be able to send the pick of the lot to the Newark outing.

* * *

Now that Bob Timmons, the Mansfield high school gridiron guard, has entered the JAC boxing tournament at 150 pounds, I am wondering what he might have done in the state high school wrestling tournament at Kent State university back in February, if he had been entered at his proper poundage there.

Timmons was listed in last fall's football programs as a 151-pounder. So I'm taking it for granted that his natural weight is right around that 150 mark.

Bob finished fourth in the 185-pound class at the state grappling tourney, winning Mansfield's only two points. It's just possible he might have won a championship at 155, or 145, the marks nearest his weight.

* * *

I can't see why he tempted fate,
To grunt and groan with heavyweights.

* * *

Abject Apology Dept.: So how was I to know, when the Mansfield women's bowling association gals insisted that I be present at the opening of their city tournament, that they had something up their sleeves besides vaccination marks?

"At 5:45 p. m.? I'll never make it." I warned 'em. "That's my eatin' time." I'm sorry now.

When I finally got there, about 7 o'clock, they handed me a very nice gold tie clasp with a bowling pendant with "Sports Editor" engraved above a ten-pin. Seems they had been planning a presentation. Well, gosh, I am sorry. Just one more time I didn't know the score.

Thanks, keeds.

Smith, Runyan Leading

But Byron Nelson Has Augusta Favorite Role.

By GAYLE TALBOT

AUGUSTA, Ga.—(AP)—The Masters golf tournament, struggling along against discouraging rain and distracting war news, enter its second round today with Horton Smith and Paul Runyan, a couple of proficient veterans, leading the field with equal 67's at the first quarter.

Strangely enough, scarcely anybody expected either Smith or Runyan to win the tournament. The favorite, after the field of 42 checked in last night, was Byron Nelson, who shot a 68 on his first round. When Nelson shoots like that at the start and admits, as he did, that he never felt more certain of his game, it's hard to make any other choice.

Harold "Jug" McSpaden played a round with Nelson, then offered to bet him against the field. The former open, P. G. A. and Masters' champion failed to hit only one green, said McSpaden, and that was because one of his drives came to rest on a rock. "When he's hitting the ball like he is now, he's unbeatable," McSpaden continued.

Smith and Runyan, however, must be reckoned with. Five under par on the exacting Augusta National course is eye-bugging golf, even when the sun is shining. Smith was in rare form from tee to green, and Runyan took only 26 putts on the 18 holes. Nelson, by comparison, required 32.

The sensation for some time was Sammy Byrd, the former ball player, who came in before the rain began with 68.

Wynn Arrives For Senators

Farm Boy Proves He Owns Winning Stuff.

(By Wide World)

The kid in the dusty blue overalls walked into camp and said he was a pitcher.

That was six years ago at Sanford, Fla., where Clyde Milan was conditioning the Chattenooga Southern association baseball club. Milan, whose club was associated with the Washington Senators, took a glance at the country-looking, stockily-built 16-year-old, whose appearance wasn't helped by his hitch-hike from Alabama, and started to shoo him off the field.

But a boy who had tramped several hundred miles was entitled to a chance. So Early Wynn threw a few to a third-string catcher. He didn't know the first principles of pitching but Milan thought the kid might develop. Pitchers were scarce and no possibility was being passed up. So Milan signed Wynn for Washington and shunted him off to the minors.

The Senators expect to cash in on Milan's discovery this year, for the now 22-year-old Wynn is tabbed as one of Washington's four starting pitchers.

This part-Indian right hander, 5-feet-10 and 170 pounds, has spent most of his time with Charleston, N. C. He lost a no-hitter down there a year or so ago. The opposition couldn't nick him for even a single but four errors in a row cost him a 1-0 decision.

Last year he was with Springfield and won 16 while dropping a dozen for this last-place club. He had a string of seven straight triumphs.

Washington brought him up late last year and he won three of his four American league starts. Two of them were four-hitters. And his only defeat was by the Yankees. The score was 1-0. Phil Rizzuto, lead-off man in the first inning, hit a homer.

"Early looks mighty good," says Manager Bucky Harris. "He has everything a pitcher needs to win but experience."

Emil (Dutch) Leonard, the knuckle-baller who won 18 games for this sixth-place outfit last year; Sid Hudson, the 1940 rookie flash who sloughed off last year (at that he won 13 against 14 defeats); Jack Wilson, the burly right-hander who came from the Red Sox, and John Welaj, and Wynn are slated for starting jobs.

Carek's Roll Into Second

Donna Schuster Leads Women's Kegling Loop.

Carek Florists won all three games from Richland Printing last night at Colony alleys and went into second place in the women's bowling league, passing the Printers by a two-game margin, and winding up just two games back of the loop-leading Safety Cabs who scored a 2-1 win over Shelley Chocolates.

Donna Schuster led the league's scoring parade with a 558 total, while Margaret Baker, who turned in a 547 mark, had high game of 208. Hazel Aultman rolled 546, Sue Humphrey 539, Florence Handwark 526, and Kate Cheney 500.

ASHLAND, Ky.—(AP)—General Manager Warren C. Giles of the Cincinnati Reds admits that he had his fingers crossed slightly when he bought Gee Walker from the Cleveland Indians, but adds: "I'm plenty enthusiastic now and I think he's the answer to our hitting problem."

Right Uppercut Proves Hair Raiser

Demonstrating the kind of action that went on last night in opening bouts of the JAC amateur boxing tournament as the high school gym, Lew Jones, Crestline, is here seen standing Chet Miller's hair on end with a long right uppercut to the chin.

Printers Cling To Top Place

Needed Shutout To Hold Slim Margin.

Mansfield Printing had to score a shutout victory of Kent Rummel last night at Colony alleys to maintain their 1-game margin at the top of the Commercial "B" bowling league, as the second-place Ingram-Martin keglers blanked Hecht & Casey.

* * *

Warreu, of the Printers, took scoring honors with a 644 total on games of 223-193-228, while Burton rolled a 617 total, and George Gump 609.

Burton's 230 was high game. Heilman Grocery had high team total of 2745.

Boudreau Whistles At Feller Loss

CLEVELAND—(AP)—The betting odds are 12 to 1 against the Cleveland Indians capturing the pennant, but it made little difference to them as they arrived here today for a brace of final tune-up games with the New York Giants.

* * *

"I think the loss of Bob was just about the most serious blow that this club could have suffered," Boudreau declared, adding that this might, however, "provide an opportunity for someone else to step out and be a bigger winner than he ever thought was possible.

* * *

"Another thing, when Bob was with us, there was a certain air of complacency on the club. The feeling that no matter what kind of ball we played, we couldn't go into a slump. Bob would always pull us out. That's gone now."

Ten Bouts Scheduled In Fistic Windup

Chet Miller Wins Close Nod Over Crestline Boy In Prelim Feature

JUNIOR ASSOCIATION OF COMMERCE amateur boxing titles go on the line tonight at 8:30 at Mansfield high school gym as 18 leather tossers, survivors of last night's elimination bouts, return to the ring wars for the final battles.

Ten slug-fests are on tonight's milling program, including two semi-final bouts and eight championship fights. And bringing the cream of last night's crop back, the show promises to provide fistic fans with plenty of entertainment.

Here's tonight's lineup:

112 pounds—Clyde Deam, Mt. Vernon, vs. Jim Drossman, Sandusky.

118 pounds—Chet Miller, Mansfield, vs. John Banks, Sandusky.

126 pounds—Victor Labruno, NYA camp, vs. Owen Ostrander, Loudonville.

135 pounds—Wesley Preston, Norwalk, vs. Herb Ebright, NYA, (semi-final) and winner vs. Glenn Heston, NYA, (final.)

147-pounds — Jim Alexander, Friendly House, vs. Martin Cook, Sandusky, (semi-final) winner vs. Lloyd Morton, Mt. Vernon, (final.)

160 pounds—Dick Kerin, Mt. Vernon, vs. Bob Timmons, Mansfield high school.

175 pounds—Beebe Bennett, Sandusky, vs. Junior Hauck, Willard.

Heavyweight—Jimmie Jones, Mansfield, vs. Phil Gannie, Crestline.

Last night's mitting brought out plenty of action as willing, though often weary, boys stood toe-to-toe and slugged it out. In most fights, science was forgotten and mayhem was the order of the day.

Sandusky's Johnny Banks started things off last night with a handy decision over Ken George of Willard in the 118-pound class, dropping the Willard lad twice in the first round for counts of eight, and two more times in the third for 8 and 7 counts.

* * *

Best fight of the night saw Chet Miller, Mansfield, edging Lew Jones of Crestline in their 118-pound melee.

* * *

Jones gave the former Johnny Appleseed star plenty of competition before he bowed out on the closest of decisions, but one on which all three judges agreed. Miller went down for a nine-count in the first heat from a right chop to the head, but came back to drop Jones for four in the second on a left hook to the jaw.

Jones tired in the third and Miller had just enough left to romp home a winner.

Victor Labruno of the NYA camp edged Bert Perkins of Ashley in their 126-pound scramble, and Glenn Heston of NYA won a technical kayo victory in 1:45 of the first round of a 135-pound tilt when Ken Reiser of Crestline decided he's had enough.

Jimmy Drossman of Sandusky punched out a win over Charles Johnson of Mt. Vernon at 112 pounds, dropping the Knox county youth for five counts in the first round, and doubling him over the ropes for five in the second.

* * *

In spite of a cut on his head, sustained in a noggin bumping exchange, Dick Kerin of Mt. Vernon outlasted George Dill of Bellville at 160 pounds. Dill went down for a two count in the initial stanza, but came back valiantly to make a fight of it. Both boys were too tired to swing in the final heat.

* * *

Herb Ebright, NYA, scored a technical knockout over Walter Beckholt, Mt. Vernon, at 135 pounds. Beckholt went down for counts of 8-8-7 before a hard right, flush on the whiskers, dropped him for the last time, at 1:56 of the second round.

Floyd Morton, lanky colored lad from Mt. Vernon, displayed a neat left hand in punching out a decision over Schlee White of Sandusky in their 147-pound argument.

Wesley the Red Preston from Norwalk had much too much reach for Mansfield's Wayne Lansen in their 135-pound tilt, and punched out a handy verdict.

Beebe Bennett, Sandusky lightheavy, chalked up a technical kayo over Law Groat of Norwalk who was unable to continue after the second round.

Martin Cook, 147, Sandusky, gained credit for a knockout over Kenny Rudolph, Mansfield in the third round when Rudolph was slow coming up at the 10-count. His right hand was still on the ropes, although he had started his climb to a horizontal position. Rudolph took a nine count in the first, and counts of 9 and 7 in the second, then came back to drop Cook for eight in the third.

* * *

Jim Alexander, Friendly House 147-pounder, packed too much experience for Loudonville's Hal Kemp (not a musician.) Kemp gave him plenty of fight, but Alexander's sharper punching won him the nod.

* * *

On the last bout of the card, Junior Hauck of Willard, lightheavy, scored a technical knockout at 1:47 of the second when Bill Martin of Sandusky threw his right shoulder out of place.

Gasco Riflemen Beat Crestline

Richland Gasco riflemen easily defeated Crestline on the Crawford County Rifle and Pistol range last night, 1415 to 1298, as Frantz set the pace on a 287 score.

* * *

The Mansfield markemen were sure death in prone shooting last night. Not only did the five finalists turn in perfect 100 scores from the prone position, but three others also marked up the century number, and the ninth member of the squad turned in a 99.

The Gasco club will fire a pistol match at Ashland Sunday.

STOCK MARKET SHAKES GLOOM OF WAR NEWS

Little Rallying Response Is Found, But Some Issues Draw Mild Support.

NEW YORK—The stock market shook off a little of its war gloom today without taking on much of a rallying tinge.

Attracting mild early support were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, United Aircraft, International Harvester, American Smelting and DuPont.

Wall Street found nothing to cheer about in the news from Bataan and the far Pacific although some analysts were beginning to believe the recent market drop to four-year lows may have discounted a lot of bearish developments. Fears for dividends and doubts anent taxes, profits limitations and more federal restrictions on industry remained as stumbling blocks for potential buyers.

Merchandising company shares came in for further study in the wake of the Dun & Bradstreet survey disclosing the continuance of heavy retail spending throughout the nation. The agency said that while there was some letdown from the Easter peak, it was less pronounced than usual.
